STATE'S PROPERTY USED IN BUILDING TALMADGE STAND

Citizens of Swainsboro Charge Road Board's Trucks Hauled Lumber For City Park Platform; Photographs Are Taken.

GUARD PRESENCE AT TALK ADMITTED

Adjutant General Camp Claims Troops at Monroe Went Voluntarily Without Notifying Officials.

As leading Talmadge followers admitted yesterday the presence of national guardsmen in civilian clothes at the Governor's Monroe speech, Russell leaders in Emanuel county last night charged that materials and state highway department were being used to prepare for the Talmadge meeting at Swainsboro.

John Powell Jr. and Colonel Robert Humphrey, of Swainsboro, last night charged that trucks from the state highway department took lumber from the highway camp near Swainsboro to the city park, where the speaking is to be held.

"We have photographs of the trucks unloading the lumber," Mr. Powell said. "We are going to publish these pictures all over Georgia to prove that every available state facility is being employed by Talmadge in this campaign."

Colonel Humphrey said that the pictures were made at his request.

Alford W. Whitson, of Swainsboro, said he was one of many who witnessed the trucks dumping the material in the city park.

"Everybody in Swainsboro who wanted to see it was there," he said. "And everybody knew they were highway trucks."

The Swainsboro charges came as Adjutant General Lindley W. Camp, and R. P. Burson, of Monroe, chairman of the entertainment committee, admitted the presence of troops at Monroe but claimed that these men said to have numbered more than 125.

57 Miners Are Killed In Coal Pit Explosion

BARNESLEY, York, England, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Hope virtually was abandoned for any of 57 miners trapped in a coal pit explosion, as rescuers battered through wreckage to return bodies to the surface.

The blast occurred in the colliery of the Wharfedale, Wood, Moor Company. Force of the explosion hurled many of the men to instant death and others apparently were suffocated by gas. There was no sign of life.

Hundreds of wives and relatives massed about the pithead tonight, waiting to identify bodies which rescuers carried to the surface.

Dr. James Henderson, who led one of the groups invading the mine, said the situation was "hopeless."

"We reached most of the bodies," he added. "A lot of the men had been killed by the violence of the explosion. Others were lying about in attitudes that suggested they had been suffocated by gas."

Constitution To Recount Atlanta's Hundred Years

Special Centennial Edition Tomorrow Will Contain Many Vivid Stories by Noted Citizens of City's Glorious Past and Present Greatness.

Atlanta's colorful history will be published tomorrow morning by The Constitution in an elaborate edition celebrating the 100th anniversary of the founding of the city and its remarkable rise to the position of commercial, industrial and financial heart of the southeast.

Stories of the city's personalities, famous historical incidents, institutions and industries will be contributed by well-known citizens. Tomorrow's paper will be one of immediate interest as well as one which everyone will wish to keep as a bright, concise chronicle of the achievements of Atlanta, past and present.

Supported by Atlanta institutions as well as many of her friends throughout the state, it is anticipated that the centennial edition of The Constitution will attract the eyes of the world and will point out the ambition, the enterprise and the romance behind the history of a city which in so short a span of years has been transformed from a wilderness into the capital of Georgia and the "Gate City of the South."

Wealth of Information.

In this paper, citizens may find out why their city is situated just where it is; why it is named Atlanta; how it suffered during the War Between the States; how it was rebuilt from the ashes left by Sherman; how it became a great industrial and financial center, and how and why today Atlanta stands as the queen city of the southeastern states.

Every Phase Covered.

There will be feature stories and articles on almost every important phase and institution in the city's development, including the fire and police departments, sports, schools, churches, manufacturing concerns, financial institutions, real estate, women's clubs, art organizations, society, the bench and the bar, medical profession, Carnegie library and the Community Chest.

There will be photographs of famous old buildings and sites, noted personalities and well-known points of interest in Atlanta today. In a word, the highlights of Atlanta's history will be "covered" by word and picture.

Among Atlanta's contributing articles to the centennial edition are Judge John D. Humphries, Dr. Willis A. Sutton, Dr. Louis D. Newton, Wilbur Kurtz, Mrs. W. F. Melton, Frank Shaw, T. M. Forbes, Harry Phillips, Dr. J. L. Campbell, Mrs. Bessie Shaw, Stafford Press Huddleston, Ralph McGil and C. J. Sheehan.

8 PERSONS KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 6.—(AP)—In its battered instruments and retracted landing gear, investigators sought today the cause of the crash which last night killed all eight persons aboard Chicago & Southern's air-liner, the City of Memphis.

Why Pilot Carl Zier turned and started back for Lambert-St. Louis municipal airport, within a few minutes after he had taken off for Chicago, was a mystery the investigators hoped to dispel.

Declining to speculate, Bureau of Air Commerce inspectors studied the wreckage and considered the stories of several near eye-witnesses. From Pilot James Benedict, who brought the plane into St. Louis from New Orleans, they learned it was in perfect mechanical order when he landed.

The first results of the investigation may be given tomorrow when St. Louis County Coroner Luke B. Tienon conducts an inquest into the deaths of Zier, his co-pilot, Russell C. Mossman, and the six passengers.

They were Vernon C. Omie, widely known airman and husband of Mrs. Phoebe Omie, former racing pilot and now a Bureau of Air Commerce official; W. S. Bartlett, Chicago, associated with the Great Lakes Coal & Coke Company; R. R. McAvitt, Chicago, a commercial artist; C. B. Wright, Hinsdale, Ill., western representative of the Lake Tankers Corporation of New York; George Grieshaber, Oak Park, Ill., manager of a dental supply firm; Arthur R. Holt, Newton Center, Mass., real estate officer.

Dr. James Henderson, who led one of the groups invading the mine, said the situation was "hopeless."

"We reached most of the bodies," he added. "A lot of the men had been killed by the violence of the explosion. Others were lying about in attitudes that suggested they had been suffocated by gas."

TALMADGE BACKED BY G. O. P.—RUSSELL

Inspectors Wonder Why Pilot Turned Back to St. Louis After Take-off.

By RALPH MCGILL.

ROYSTON, Ga., Aug. 6.—Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. lighted the watch fires of democracy on a thousand hills here this afternoon before a great concourse of people gathered from five counties to hear him speak in behalf of his candidacy for reelection to the United States senate.

This was no mere great crowd. It was a vast crowd. It stretched from the vacant field to the streets. It was an enthusiastic crowd that shouted its approval almost unanimously for Senator Russell stood four-square for the democratic party and the faith of his fathers and the state of Georgia.

This was no demagogic speaking to a free people from behind the protecting rows of soldiers in civilian clothes, but an honored citizen of the state giving an account of his stewardship. He definitely pinned Governor Talmadge to the republican party.

This is not merely a fight for Dick Russell, he said. "This is a fight for the democratic party. The republican party has no issue and cannot have one unless Eugene Talmadge should give them one and I do not believe the state of Georgia will desert the democratic party to do that."

"We are going to vote for Junior," yelled dozens of men, referring to Talmadge's phrase. He had called Russell "Junior" at Monroe Wednesday, speaking from behind the state militia.

"Gene Talmadge made a great mistake," Russell said. "He had him a house founded on the good faith of the people of Georgia, but he strayed off. He went off to that feast of Belshazzar and he came back to move."

Cobb Says: McNutt Thinks Hearst Mean

By IRVIN S. COBB.

(Copyright, 1936, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)
SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Aug. 6.—And the famous Santa Barbara fiesta feasting on every side and yours truly looking as much like a Spanish Hidalgo as anybody born in McCracken county, Kentucky, could be expected to look.

Plenty of other disturbing occurrences, too. Host wave still hanging on in spots. Fresh European complications on account of the Spanish mess. Governor McNutt, of Indiana, threatening to come unscrewed again over his tremendous discovery that the W. R. Hearst now opposing Mr. Roosevelt is a very wicked person and in no wise related to the nice, kind, sweet gentleman of the same name who so patriotically supported Mr. Roosevelt four years ago. Down at his home on the range where seldom is heard a discouraging word—except from Uncle Jack Garner, with his head over the coral bars, beginning to moo plaintively.

And now, on top of all that, it seems we must start worrying about Tommy Manville's next wife or wives, as the case may be—and probably will.

I do wish Tommy could see his way clear to hold off till fall. If memory serves me aright, the fall always was his favorite marrying season, anyhow.

$119,000 BOOST IN FULTON TAXES QUICKLY ALLOTTED

$11,944,875 Boost in Assessments Announced by Tax Receiver Guy Moore; Intangibles Rise.

Tax assessments in Fulton county increased $11,944,875 this year over the figures for 1935, resulting in an increase of approximately $119,000 in taxes to Fulton county, which immediately was earmarked by the county commissioners for specified purposes.

Tax Receiver Guy A. Moore yesterday announced the 1936 tax digest at $255,072,045, as compared with $243,127,170 in 1935.

Valuation of intangibles increased tremendously, although assessments on county and city real estate fell off.

Fulton commissioners, at a meeting yesterday to complete routine business unfinished at the regular session Wednesday, allocated $18,000 of the increased amount to the public works department for the purchase of asphalt, as well as the $20,000 voted the public works department Wednesday for buying new equipment. It had already been provided that a large part of $37,000 allocated to county teachers as half a month salary in the summer should come from this increase, anticipated by county auditors. Thus, $75,500 of the expected increase was appropriated to the schools and the public works department.

Moore also said he sent the tax digest to the state comptroller general yesterday, that the jump in valuations shows greater prosperity in Fulton county than the figures being the largest since 1929.

It is on this digest that the county makes its levies, which are decided at the September meeting of the board of commissioners.

Total Returns Increase.

The tax receiver pointed out that the number of returns this year, 69,197, were 3,204 more than the total in 1935.

The largest increase in assessments this year came in stocks and bonds, the figures in 1935 being only $2,877,690, while in 1936 they were $11,377,335. This jump resulted principally because for the first time Coca-Cola was undomesticated in Georgia, Moore said.

Although increases were noted in most types of taxable property, real estate took a tumble in both the city and county. Assessments on city real estate were down 1.5 per cent.

GEORGIA WILL GET VOCATION FUNDS

George-Deen Bill Provides for Additional Training School Money.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Vocational education schools in Georgia will be enabled to practically double their capacity as the result of an allotment to be made by the federal government to the state following passage during the closing session of the last session to draft a vocational education bill satisfactory to a majority of the members of congress.

Under terms for the distribution of these funds for the next year, Georgia will receive $440,650, which will have to be matched by $231,982 of state funds. The money will be used to conduct classes in agriculture, trade and industry, home economics, and distributive occupations.

The allotment of federal funds for salaries and necessary traveling expenses of teachers, supervisors and directors, in the state, will be divided as follows: Agriculture, $179,368; trade in agriculture, $64,007; home economics, $145,970; distributive occupations, $27,987.

For preparation of teachers, superintendents, etc., $10,000.

Six-Year-Old Girl Dies of Burns After Heroic Rescue by Brother

Despite a heroic rescue by her 12-year-old brother, Barbara Jean Carter, 6, died at about 11:30 o'clock last night in Grady hospital of burns suffered early yesterday afternoon when, her clothing ablaze, she was trapped by flames in a small coal house in the rear of her home at 607 Gaskill street, S. E.

The death of the child, who was severely burned about the face and body, brought a tragic close to a drama in which her brother, Roy H. Carter Jr., knew "he had to work fast and did" in attempting to save the life of his sister.

LABOR FACTIONS AGREE TO TRUCE DURING ELECTION

Both Green and Lewis Remain Adamant But Further Hostilities Will Wait Until November.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(UP)—A hostile truce, expected to continue until immediately after the November presidential elections, tonight brought a lull in the slashing feud between leaders of the American Federation of Labor which already has caused the suspension of 10 unions embracing more than 1,000,000 workers.

The only break in the armistice came from the "rebels" who were ordered suspended September 5 by the federation's executive council unless they dropped attempts to establish industrial unions in mass production industries under the banner of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Their answer today was to intensify drives to unionize 4,000,000 workers in steel, automobile and rubber industries.

C. I. O. Claims Recruits.

The C. I. O. campaign to organize the steel industry went into its second month today with labor leaders claiming 8,000 recruits. From Detroit came word that a drive to unionize workers in the General Motors Corporation would begin soon. Reports of the campaign in the rubber industry were described as "satisfactory" at C. I. O. headquarters.

John L. Lewis, dynamic mine boss and head of the C. I. O., who characterized the executive council's suspension order as an "appalling blunder," today declined further comment except to say that there would be no surrender by his group and that their fight would go on.

Other "rebels" described the 30 days of grace given them by the council as a "gesture" and indicated they would continue their fight.

REP. J. J. M'SWAIN DIES IN COLUMBIA

Funeral Plans Announced for Sunday at Greenville by House Officer.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Aug. 6.—(AP)—A heart attack today brought death to Representative John J. McSwain, democratic congressman from the fourth South Carolina district since 1920, and chairman of the house committee on military affairs.

The 61-year-old lawmaker was stricken on a train as he was returning his home at Greenville, where he had been spending several days with the 263d coast artillery, a national guard regiment of which he was honorary colonel.

He was removed from the train upon its arrival here and transferred to the United States Veterans' hospital about 1 p. m. He died at 3:15 p. m. Dr. O. E. Herndon, the hospital's chief medical officer, said death was Government Announces Capture of 2,000 Fascists And Opening of Path to the Southern Coastline.

LISBON, Aug. 7.—(Friday)—(UP)—An advance column of General Emilio Mola's fascist rebel troops reached the outskirts of Madrid early today, the insurgent radio station at Seville announced.

MADRID, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Spanish loyalists tonight claimed surrender of rebel Cadiz in the south, smashed toward northern Zaragoza with capture of 2,000 fascists, and dug in for two more months of warfare to quell the 20-day-old rebellion.

Landing of 4,000 additional Moroccan troops on the Spanish mainland, after a five-hour battle in the Straits of Gibraltar, was the chief rebel gain for the day. It brought to 8,000 the African forces now available to the southern fascists.

Both sides, admittedly in the market for munitions, faced the problem of finding any available to them with announcement eight European nations had agreed in principle to supply neither fascists nor loyalists with arms.

AMERICA WARNS REDS TO PROTECT PROPERTY IN SPAIN

U. S. Demands That Our Interests Be Safeguarded and That Compensation Be Paid for Damage

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Spain's embattled radical government was served formal notice by the United States today that it will be held strictly accountable for the protection of American property there.

Disturbed over the potential menace to America's $70,000,000 investment, the State Department disclosed it had dispatched a note to Madrid invoking the aid of Spanish authorities in safeguarding American property and warning that compensation must be paid for any damages.

"This government cannot admit that private property, whether in the hands of American nationals or abandoned by them temporarily because of conditions over which they have no control, may be interfered with impunity or denied the protection to which it is entitled under international law," said a summary of the note released here.

"The government must, of course, look to the government of Spain for the protection of such property and for indemnification for any delinquency in this respect."

In the event of requisition for the necessities of war or otherwise of American property this government must insist that provision be made for prompt and full compensation to the owners.

The language of the note, some observers predicted, foreshadowed a probable early claim against the Spanish government for the recent seizure of the Ford Motor Company and General Motors Corporation plants at Barcelona. Numerous private American motor cars also have been confiscated in Madrid and Barcelona.

Although no official explanation was forthcoming, it was learned on trustworthy authority that one of the factors prompting the move was the

By CHARLES H. FOLTZ.

PARIS, Aug. 6.—(AP)—France tonight hastily drafted the text of an eight-power agreement for non-interference in Spain's civil war to forestall any aid to rebel forces by Germany or Italy.

Authoritative French sources indicated the government's action was hastened by the decision of Reichsfuehrer Hitler to protest to the leftist government of Barcelona against the reported execution of four German citizens.

An article in a Rome newspaper urging recognition of the rebel government also was a factor in spurring draft of the definite program for non-interference.

The question raised by Italy asking distinction between non-intervention and neutrality will be answered in the French text, officials indicate, by clauses withholding recognition of the rebel government and forbidding private industries to sell war supplies to either force in Spain.

The powers agreed in principle tonight were France, Great Britain, Germany, Russia, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Czechoslovakia. Portugal's attitude was not yet apparent. Germany had not yet responded, but diplomatic sources said "adhesions or opinions explicitly favorable" were received.

Berlin dispatches reported four German citizens had been executed at Barcelona after brief court-martial, although they carried necessary identification papers.

Bandit, Victim Shot In Holdup at Winder

A bandit with a nervous trigger finger was shot and wounded at about 11 o'clock last night in gunplay at a filling station and refreshment stand on the Atlanta-Winder highway, two miles west of Winder, during which Robert Stuart, 19, an employee of the roadside establishment, also was wounded in the right leg.

After the bandit was shot by Elmer Elder, proprietor of the filling station, he staggered outside. Two accomplices in a waiting automobile pulled him into their car and drove toward a half of shots fired by Elder. A posse was organized and search for the bandits was in progress early this morning.

The shooting began when the bandit entered, drew a pistol and fired. Nothing was stolen. The bandit was believed to be critically wounded. Stewart was treated by a Winder physician. His condition is not serious. The bandit car drove off toward Hoschtown, Jackson county.

MAN ROBS, FIRES HOME AND ATTACKS NURSE

MONROE, N. I., Aug. 6.—(AP)—State police searched today for a well-dressed man who, they were told, robbed and set fire to the summer home of Dr. Daniel Kealey, of Hoboken, N. J., yesterday, after attacking a nurse with a knife and threatening one of the Kealey's two baby daughters. The nurse was not seriously hurt.

She put the fire out with minor damage. Police said it was possible the man was a maniac. He escaped with $55.

Dr. Kealey is Hoboken's superintendent of schools and was in Hoboken at the time. Mrs. Kealey, who rushed home from a bridge-luncheon, found the nurse holding one of the crying children.

The nurse's arms were bleeding, a tablecloth had been destroyed by fire and there were burned spots on the dining room rug.

Dry ice is becoming one of the most popular methods of "air-conditioning" an automobile for crossing the desert country, it was learned in San Diego, Cal. A large block is wrapped in paper and placed in the car, and all windows closed except a small space for ventilation.

ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

SENATOR RUSSELL SAYS G.O.P. BACKS TALMADGE

into another house with marble halls, a house that is built upon sand and the support of the republican party and he sees the handwriting on the wall.

"His conscience is hurting him now," said Russell, and the crowd shouted, "Four it to him, pour it to him." He said there might be some letters coming down to tell you how to vote and he said the people of Georgia would not stand for this. "He ought to know. He brought the Raskob and duPont people down to Macon to try to tell you how and you didn't pay any attention to him."

"I'll tell you this, when the letters come down to Gene from the Raskob and the duPonts had dollar marks on them then Gene got out and started telling you how to vote."

"Four it into him! Pour it into him! Let him have it!" shouted the crowd and Dick Russell let him have it.

"I have here," he said, "an interesting document. It is an affidavit from Decatur county. The man Shanks, who sent Gene his bale of cotton, is a republican official in Decatur county and he is doing his duty to the republican party by sending his cotton to Talmadge to help out the republicans."

There were at least 15,000 people who all but turned over the platform in their eagerness to get close to the senator. It was twice as large as the crowd that heard Talmadge at Monroe Wednesday.

"Let me tell you about that processing tax," Russell said. "That's a dead issue since January and Gene knows it but let me tell you this: We tried to pass a law saying the farmer should get 40 cents a pound for his cotton. I voted for that law. I think we ought to have that right but they said it was unconstitutional. So we had the processing tax and it did it. It taxed the man who bought a pair of overalls as well as a rich man buying a suit of clothes. It was a summer camp and it took this money and it passed it right back to the farmers of the cotton states, Georgia and the others."

"Now if he were trying to deceive you he would give you the whole story. He talks about Georgia not getting back all that was paid in to the government on cotton and he mentions cotton states that got back more. Well, why didn't he tell you about Massachusetts, which paid in more than $42,000,000 and didn't get back a dime. All of it went to the cotton farmers. Why didn't he tell you about Rhode Island, a state not as large as these five counties represented here today? That little state paid in $500,000 in processing taxes and didn't get back a cent. The cotton farmers got it. Gene doesn't tell you the story because he wants to deceive you. He hasn't got much of a platform and he's trying to get off of part of what he's got. He had a 2-cent postage stamp, plain and simple, and he told him I'd already helped make that a law."

The crowd whooped in laughter.

In rare form, the senator was in rare form and this crowd was with him, loudly shrieking commendation and support. Senator Russell charged that Eugene Talmadge made a willfully false statement when he said that he, Russell, had opposed the soldiers' bonus.

"The record is there to read," he said. "I was in Washington where the bonus was passed and Talmadge was in Atlanta. He stands on the platform of the Economy League which opposes a soldier's bonus."

"I've got the record."

"You're right," yelled an ex-soldier. The crowd took a particular delight as Russell pictured Talmadge walking hand in hand with the Raskob and the Duponts, who made more than $300,000,000 in dividends during the war, and pointed out how Talmadge was trying to have their income taxes cancelled.

"Old Gene strayed off," shouted a farmer.

"I'm for old age pensions for the aged of Georgia," Russell said. "When that bill came before the senate I voted for it and we got it passed. The house amended it and I tried to get the bill amended so the old people would get $15 a month anyhow. Gene Talmadge vetoed the bill in Georgia and said, 'I, King Eugene, won't let the people vote on this.' But I'm going to fight for it and we are going to have it. Thirty-three states have that law and I am going to see that the old people of Georgia get it."

"He knows he makes a false statement when he says the farmers are not entitled to this pension, and if you are one of those who believe him you at least owe it to yourselves to get on a train and go to one of the states that has it and see for yourself."

"Pour it to him, Dick."

People Not Deceived.

He tells you some negroes might get the benefit of this law, that's just like a man who has run out of soap and hasn't anything to say in a campaign. You can always depend on him to come running in shouting, 'Nigger, nigger, nigger,' but the people are not going to be deceived by any such tactics."

"I say that the old people who helped build this country and who helped to make it what it is shall have the benefits of this pension in their old age. It gives some help to the blind, some to the deaf, some to the lame, some to the helpless with a tin cup, we will give you some help again."

Again the roar of the crowd stopped him.

"We were fooled once but never again."

MY COOKERY

By MISS RUTH CHAMBERS.

Being a collector is not only fashionable, but fun, whether you collect stamps or old glass or first editions. Why people go in for useless knick-knacks I never could see, but some of them do. It seems so much more interesting to turn your hobby into a business, to some good end.

Collecting recipes is a worthwhile hobby, and can be put to good advantage by the clever housewife. It is one of those little ways of adding zest to everyday tasks.

Cake recipes are fascinating to collect, and then to try. And if your family is like most of ours, the younger members especially will heartily endorse your hobby.

Perhaps you think you've made cakes in about all the good ways there are. But have you used lard for shortening in any of them? If you haven't, there's a whole new world in cake baking opening up to you.

Of course, you know the value of lard in pastry making, and what flaky pie crusts it makes. It is the higher in shortening value than any other plastic fat used in cooking. It is good for quick breads and biscuits, and also for cookies.

And you'll find it a very satisfactory and economical shortening for cakes, too. I like it especially for chocolate and spice cakes, but it can be used with good results with white cakes.

Mixing Method.

However, before I give you a group of recipes to add to your collection, perhaps it might be well to describe the best mixing methods of cakes when lard is used. To make a cake with sugar cream more easily, add two tablespoons of milk to the lard. Then add three-fourths of the amount of sugar, gradually. Cream until light and fluffy. Stir the egg yolks into the remaining milk. Beat the egg whites until stiff, but not dry, add remaining one-fourth sugar to the egg whites. Beat until the sugar just barely disappears. Sift flour, salt and baking powder together. Add flour and liquid alternately, beginning the ending with flour and taking care never to add enough liquid to let the fat separate. Carefully fold in the egg whites into which sugar has been beaten.

One-Egg Cake.

One-quarter cup (scant) lard, one-half cup sugar, one egg, one-half cup milk, one and one-half cups soft wheat flour, two and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt. Mix as described above and bake in a well-oiled pan in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.). Using this recipe as a guide, you can make many other cakes.

And what he got in 1933, and the years of the New Deal.

"That's right, that's the price," yelled the crowd.

Seagraves quoted improved prices in corn and the crowd echoed with shouts of approval.

John B. Morris followed him to the stand. He farms in Hart county. A few minutes ago he had been in the Talmadge was running for commissioner of agriculture.

Called Farmers' foe.

"He said he was going to tear down a machine that was hurting the farmer and what has he done? He has created a machine bigger than the one he promised to destroy, and now he is trying to throttle all benefits to the farmer and trying to tell you not only who to elect for governor, but who for the senate and also all the balliffs in your own county."

"You took the words right out of my mouth," yelled a farmer just in front of the stand, and the massed throngs roared their approval.

Mrs. Paul Johns, wife of a farmer, making her first speech, came to the platform. She got a great cheer. "You might ask what a farmer's wife knows about the New Deal," she began.

"They know a heap," shouted a farmer. More than anybody else, said another, and the crowd roared approval.

"We know what the Deal has done for the farmer," she said. "We know how despair has driven out and how we know Senator Russell helped hold up the hands of our great President. Let's send him back up there to protect the farmer."

Another roar that thundered over the city followed her as she returned to her seat.

Then followed the introduction by George Adams of Hoxton. It was an eloquent plea for Georgia to remain true to her traditions, to refuse traitors who would try to tear down the Georgia flag and the benefits given to the farmer by the New Deal. He paid a great tribute to Senator Russell and his service to the state and urged to a tumultuous shouting of approval that they send Senator Russell back to the senate.

Russell arose and a tremendous ovation that reached the far-flung hills was given to him. He said that he was a Georgia man who has kept the faith and never betrayed his state, his party or his friends.

LABOR BURIES HATCHET UNTIL AFTER ELECTION

not retreat from the course laid when the C. I. O. was organized last November.

Green Silent.

Equally silent was President William Green of the federation, who presided over the fateful sessions of the council. He described the break in the federation's ranks yesterday as "unfortunate" and "regrettable."

He said all I have to say is, "I've said all I have to say." He called the council into session on September 7 to take final action in the case of the "rebels."

Otherwise the situation was quiet. Green and Lewis are expected to clash again before the federation's annual convention in Tampa, Fla. on November 16. The outcome of this struggle may change the entire course of trade unionism in America and will be felt by worker and employer alike. Likewise, the action of the convention will be watched for signs of a new political party in which labor would play a leading role.

The nucleus of such a party already exists in labor's Non-Partisan League, headed by Major George L. Berry, demitted as Lewis and campaigning for the re-election of President Roosevelt. The organization will be continued after the election. Berry has explained so far the labor will be prepared to take advantage of political realignments which he expects will take place before 1940.

Lewis, a life-long republican, and several of the C. I. O. officials already have pledged their support to Mr. Roosevelt. If the drive in the mass production industries succeeds, membership in the C. I. O. unions may exceed the 2,300,000 embraced by A. F. of L. craft unions, experts point out. This would make Lewis the most powerful labor leader in America.

Political leaders do not expect Roosevelt's campaign to be influenced by the split in labor's ranks, though the federation is non-partisan. Green, a democrat, has pledged his personal support to the President and a majority of the federation's executive council have democratic leanings.

Seek Full Convention.

The status the "rebel" unions will occupy at the federation's Tampa convention remained in doubt tonight. It was reported that George M. Harrison, head of the railway clerks and ace conciliator of the council, will ask that group when it meets on September 7 to approve a plan which would enable the "insurgents" to be seated at the convention.

Otherwise, it was said, it would be possible for a credentials committee of three men named from the craft unions whose leaders ousted the Lewis group to rule that they should not be seated. Such action, if approved by the federation, yesterday, "knew the rebels" a vote on the resolution confirming the action of the council by which they were read out of the organization.

Suspension orders must be approved by a two-thirds vote of the convention, which the craft unionists would not have unless they barred the "rebels."

Daniel J. Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, said today that under no circumstances will the division between craft and industrial labor unionists "divide the leaders of the labor movement" who are supporting the return of the Roosevelt administration.

Tobin made his statement after conferring with Charles J. A. Foley, secretary of the democratic national committee. He arrived today to assume the position of chairman of the labor division of the democratic committee.

YOUNG HARRIS COLLEGE RAISES $100,000 FUND

New Building To Be Named For Charles S. Reid, Atlanta Citizen.

YOUNG HARRIS, Ga., Aug. 6.—Exercises celebrating the 50th anniversary of the founding of Young Harris College here were featured today by the announcement by Charles S. Reid, of Atlanta, that the $100,000 endowment fund, sought by the college, had been raised. Mr. Reid, an Atlanta attorney and alumnus of the college, is treasurer of the endowment committee of the board of trustees.

Announcement was also made that Scott Appleby, of Washington, D. C., who has heretofore contributed large sums to the college, had authorized the erection of a new classroom building. This will be a one-story building and will duplicate the science building erected in 1933. It will be constructed of brick.

Mr. Appleby, who is a native of Pendergrass, Ga., and an alumnus of the college, presented the new building to the college and requested that it be named the "Charles S. Reid" building in honor of his efforts to raise the endowment fund.

Colonel Marion Dobbs, of Marietta, president of the alumni association, and a graduate of the class of 1907, presided at today's session of the board of trustees and spoke on the "Value of Christian Education."

President T. J. Lance rendered his report which showed the college in fine condition and out of debt. He said the outlook for the fall term was promising.

Other speakers included Mr. Appleby and Mr. Reid.

Mr. Reid in announcing that the endowment fund had been raised, stated that the campaign for the fund was begun in 1922 and had been pushed steadily since. He said a large number of former students of the college contributed to the fund, few subscriptions being for more than $100 and a number for $1. He said the largest contributor was the late William L. Peel, of Atlanta, who gave $5,000 to the fund.

A large number of former students and members of the board of trustees and friends of the college attended the exercises today. A barbecue lunch was served at noon.

KIWANISANS TO MEET.
ROME, Ga., Aug. 6.—August 26 has been set for an intercity meeting of Kiwanis clubs of this district at Marietta. Dr. George Hagood, of Marietta, has been named chairman on arrangements. The district includes clubs in Rome, Atlanta, Marietta, Lawrenceville, Blue Ridge and Cedar-town. The last district meeting was held with the Rome club here several months ago.

The program calls for business meetings in the afternoon and evening, with a recreational program as well.

BIG MOTORCADE OPENS ATLANTA-TAMPA ROAD

Senator George Says Recovery Result of Organized Government Effort.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Aug. 6.—(P) United States Senator Walter F. George said here today America's recovery from the depression was "the result of organized efforts of government" for the people's welfare and not the work of any one individual or group of individuals.

The Georgia senator was principal speaker at a celebration held here in conjunction with the cities of Monticello and Perry in Florida to mark completion of the "short cut" highway between Atlanta and Tampa.

Senator George spoke at the municipal stadium here after a motorcade from Florida had reached here. He outlined the history of the federal highway system including what he called its "rebirth" under the administration of President Woodrow Wilson and praised the work of the federal government in highway construction.

Luncheon was served the visitors. Augmented by a large group of Thomas county automobiles, the motorcade returned to Florida for a watermelon cutting at Monticello where addresses were made by Kous Huthway, of Jacksonville, Mayor Richard Simpson and T. T. Turnball, of Monticello and others.

Concluding events on the motorcade program were held at Perry where Governor Dave Sholtz, of Florida, was on the program for an address. A fish fry and barbecue also were held.

Senator George was introduced at the celebration here by W. W. Alexander, attorney and president of the Chamber of Commerce. E. R. Jergers, editor of the Thomasville Times-Enterprise, was master of ceremonies.

Congressman E. E. Cox, of Camilla, also spoke at the celebration.

Thomasville observed a half-holiday in connection with the celebration, and the city was bedecked with flags and bunting.

The highway from Atlanta to Tampa passes through Griffin, Thomaston, Americus, Albany, Camilla, Pelham, Thomasville, Monticello, Perry, Williston, Dunellon, Brooksville and into Tampa.

GAINESVILLE PROJECT CALLS FOR 125 HOMES
RFC to Co-operate in Erection of Residences in Storm Area.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 6.—Expansion of Gainesville in two directions became a certainty today with organization of the Gainesville Replacement Home, Inc., a corporation backing the erection of 125 new homes destroyed by the tornado on April 6 in co-operation with the RFC.

A total of 125 residences will be erected, 50 for whites and 75 for negroes, and the total cost of the buildings alone will reach $100,000. In addition to this expenditure, the WPA will grade and gravel four new streets and extend two more and lay water and sewerage lines along the routes. The total cost is expected to exceed $200,000.

EXTRADITION URGED FOR GEORGIA NEGRO
HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 6.—(P) Andrew Shinholster, 60-year-old negro and former share cropper whose extradition on a burglary charge was asked by Georgia, testified today he never got any pay in 31 years' work on one plantation other than "five or six dollars around Christmas."

Mrs. Margaret Napier, of Milledgeville, Ga., charged Shinholster with $29.50 worth of cotton seed from her gin house in November and fled a week later to Philadelphia, where he was arrested July 11.

Shinholster told Adrian Bonnelly, deputy attorney general, that he failed to get his one-half share of the year's seed which he sold for $29.50. He later went to Philadelphia.

Bonnelly said he would make his recommendations about extraditing him to Governor George H. Earle after "careful consideration."

Mrs. Napier, at Milledgeville, when advised of the negro's statement, tonight positively denied Shinholster's charge.

"He's a liar," Mrs. Napier said. "He was well paid for everything he's ever done."

She charged Shinholster with being implicated with two other negroes in systematic thefts of cotton and cottonseed from her farm.

"We don't want him back," she asserted. "The sheriff wants him as a witness."

Mrs. Napier said Shinholster, first employed by her 35 years ago, had been paid for his work, given extensive medical care for which he was not charged, and gotten out of minor scrapes with the law.

TABACCO WAREHOUSES ARE JAMMED WITH LEAF

Prices Higher Than Last Year Cause Rush of Weed to Markets.

By the Associated Press.
A brisk demand for Georgia's 1936 tobacco, coupled with good prices, continued yesterday with growers still concentrating heavy offerings of the golden leaf at the 15 market centers.

Prices in many instances averaged more than 26 cents per pound. Blocked sales prevailed at several warehouses with farmers bringing in more tobacco than warehouses could accommodate. Trucks, wagons and emergency storage places held tobacco awaiting a place on the market floors.

Unofficial reports showed prices were at least six cents higher than the average prices last year. Sales last year totaled more than $13,000,000.

Moultrie reported sales Wednesday of 649,018 pounds at an average of 26.10 cents a pound. Valdosta 639,924 pounds at 26.51 average; Habersham 234,400 at 25; Adel (Tuesday and Wednesday) 670,906 at 26.88; Tifton 808,194 at 25.51.

Waycross reported Wednesday sales of 285,770 pounds at an average of 26.73, or about six cents a pound better than last season.

Nashville had heavy offerings again yesterday but the demand was brisk. Warehouses there reported Wednesday sales of $30,392 pounds at an average of 27.51 cents a pound, and a total for the two days so far this season of 1,699,008 pounds at an average of 28.34.

A. W. Starling, Nashville newspaperman, said more than 1,000,000 pounds were on the floors there yesterday and another 1,000,000 pounds on trucks, wagons and in emergency storage places, awaiting space on the warehouse floors.

Others of the 15 tobacco market cities in the state also reported good prices and heavy receipts this week.

Official figures on sales will be announced next week by the State Department of Agriculture.

REP. JOHN J. M'SWAIN DIES OF HEART ATTACK

caused by recurrence of a coronary occlusion, an ailment for which the congressman received treatment at Walter Reed hospital in Washington about five years ago.

Was Failing in Health.
Representative McSwain had been in failing health for several months. Early this summer he announced he would not seek re-election, saying his physician had warned him against undertaking the strenuous campaign.

During his stay at Fort Monrue, he spent a few days in the post hospital. At that time it was said he was merely seeking a rest.

A World War veteran himself, Representative McSwain was an advocate of an adequate program of national defense. As chairman of the military affairs committee, he visited many of the army's stations, often traveling by airplane on these inspection trips.

He was 42 years old when the United States declared war against Germany. After winding up his pending legal affairs, he entered the first officers' training camp at Fort Monrue, Ga., and was later commissioned as a captain of infantry.

Resumes Law Practice.

He commanded a company of the 15th Infantry at Camp Beauregard, La., until after the armistice. Then he returned to Greenville and resumed his law practice.

Born on a farm in Laurens county, McSwain was educated at country schools and later graduated from the University of South Carolina. He studied law while earning his living as a school teacher.

He was a member of the Methodist church and various fraternal orders. Surviving are his widow and two children.

DEATH TERMED NATIONAL LOSS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(AP)—As chairman of the house military affairs committee, Representative John J. McSwain, who died today at Columbia, S. C., was a staunch advocate of strong national defense.

A fight of several years for an increased army strength was climaxed last session by passage of a bill raising the enlisted personnel from 118,000 to 165,000. He also obtained an increase of the officer strength from 12,000 to 14,000 and an enlargement of the size and equipment of the army air corps.

McSwain also advocated better training for reserve officers and provision for reserve officers and provision whereby they obtain commission in the regular army.

Harry H. Woodring, acting secretary of war, said: "I have learned with deep regret of the passing of Mr. McSwain. During his long service as chairman of the military affairs committee he made a substantial contribution to national defense. As a veteran of the World War and as a student of military affairs he was thoroughly familiar with the needs of the service. He was largely responsible for much of the recent legislation so beneficial to the army and to the country."

"His death is a national loss."

GEORGIA TO BENEFIT BY VOCATIONAL FUNDS

vivors and directors in agriculture, trade and industry and home economics $23,315 will be used.

To match these federal funds Georgia will have to raise $89,684 for agriculture; $32,003 for trade and industry; $72,989 for home economics; $13,989 for distributive occupations and $23,315 for preparation of teachers, supervisors, etc.

According to officials of the office of education, Department of the Interior, two new features of the work in vocational education, will be stressed next year, those of trade and industry and distributive occupation.

By trade and industry is meant classes in the predominant industries of any given community, whether it be textiles, steel, clothing, machinery or whatnot, the classes in each state or community to be determined by the state director. The general objective will be to prepare the young man or woman in classes, which may be conducted at night, to earn higher wages by learning a job to better master their particular job.

Other Occupations.

Distributive occupations will be conducted in towns and cities where young men and women will be taught salesmanship and related vocations such as window decorating, invoicing, stock display and kindred work that may make them more valuable to employers.

When the vocational education measure was before the senate for action last April Senator George said:

"Demand for vocational agriculture during the emergency greatly increased; 600 new departments started during the present school year due to permanent character of instruction and demands will continue to increase."

"Although 5,700 localities are now reached by vocational agriculture, 15,000 rural communities need to be reached. With sufficient federal funds an additional 1,000 rural centers on a matched basis or 3,000 additional rural centers with unmatched funds could have been established."

"Twenty-three thousand out-of-school farm boys received part-time instruction in vocational agriculture in 1934-35, a total of 3,000,000 out-of-school farm youths in the United States."

"That the federal co-operation with the states under the Smith-Hughes act and George-Elsey act stimulates the states to promote vocational training is shown by the fact that every state promptly accepted the provisions of the act; with few exceptions the states and local communities use practically all federal funds allotted and now after six years of depression they spend for the same purpose $21.3 of state and local money to every dollar of federal aid."

$119,000 TAX INCREASE REPORTED BY FULTON

estate in 1935 were $154,981,000 and only $133,039,500 in 1936. On county property, assessments in 1935 were $23,581,480 while the 1936 digest showed the figures to be $22,904,350. Readjustments by the board of tax assessors caused most of the drop, it was said.

Property of negroes in both Fulton county and the city of Atlanta was assessed at $6,247,000, while the total valuation of white property in the county and city was $248,524,985.

Bank Deposits Grew.
Valuation of bank deposits this year grew also. In 1935 the figure was $1,141,640 while this digest shows $1,223,430. There was only a small increase in the valuation of automobiles, the amount this year being $4,768,415 as compared with $4,276,005 in 1935.

Livestock increased from $145,140 in 1935 to $160,790, and the value of family pets, such as dogs, moved up from $1,615 to $2,395 this year. Household goods climbed from $5,735,820 to $6,168,555 this year.

The value of farm implements and products were hiked from $57,400 in 1935 to $134,195 in 1936. Merchandise, however, dropped from $34,722,310 last year to $29,229,675. Underscribed property last year was valued at $2,965,450 but increased to $10,560,720 this year.

Jewelry Increases.
Even jewelry took a decided upswing in returns. The assessments in 1935 were $292,530 but became $319,100 in 1936. But the value of machinery fell off during this time. Last year it was assessed at $5,294,740 and this year at $4,491,565.

Bank stock returns showed a large increase from $26,610 last year to $240,650 in 1936.

In analyzing the returns, Moore noted that 62,777 were made by white persons and 6,420 by negroes. Residents of the city made 44,033 of the white returns, a gain of 841 over the number for 1935, while 29 fewer negroes made returns in the city this year than last.

In 1935, 36,904 persons paid poll taxes but 2,448 more did voluntarily. Returns this year to bring the total to 39,052.

The digest was started three months ago in the tax receiver's office and was completed yesterday, Moore announced. He paid tribute to the work of Deputy Clerks Ed F. Keen, W. G. Morris Jr., George L. Edmondson and J. Paul Gilstrap, who did the actual work.

PRESENCE OF GUARD AT MONROE ADMITTED

volunteered their services without notifying officials.

General Camp said that he hoped members of the guard would volunteer to aid in handling crowds at the campaign meetings. Camp insisted that the men received no pay for their work.

Governor Talmadge said he had no comment to make but Burson, a Talmadge appointee on the board of regents of the University System, issued his statement from the Governor's office.

Colonel Pope Attended.
It was established yesterday that Colonel L. C. Pope, of Dublin, commanding officer of the 121st infantry, was at Monroe Wednesday. Colonel Pope is textile strike areas last year, and is considered General Camp's "right-hand man."

Both Camp and Burson insisted that the troops were not called out. However, Ernest Camp, editor of the Walton Tribune, who previously had called the presence of the troops a "disgrace," said that 25 members of the Monroe company of the 122d infantry were on duty but asserted that the company commander had told him the men volunteered for their service.

It could not be learned who was in command of the detail.

Camp Statement.
In his statement, General Camp said:

"There were no troops ordered to duty at Monroe at the command of the Governor or myself. The Monroe company, I am told, volunteered their services to aid in directing traffic. I hope that all national guard companies will offer their services to their communities when they can be of such assistance regardless of whose meeting it happens to be."

The brief statement of Mr. Burson follows:

"The national guards in Monroe, Ga., were not called out at the Talmadge meeting on August 5."

"They offered their services as citizens of Walton county to help direct Pope commanded guard troops sent to Monroe to hear Talmadge."

Editor Camp issued this statement from Monroe:

"The captain of the local military company declares no members of his company were on duty by verbal or written command but that 25 members of the company volunteered to direct traffic and offer any assistance to visitors. They were dressed as civilians."

"The report is that eight national guardsmen came to Monroe Tuesday night from Atlanta and spent the night and that 125 more arrived in automobiles at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning dressed in citizens clothing."

"There was no public display of military power or authority, although it is said the guardsmen coming from Atlanta were armed with pistols, some of which were seen as they alighted from their cars."

"The presence of the national guardsmen at the speaking is strongly resented in statements given out by the sheriff of Walton county, the mayor of Monroe and other prominent citizens."

'A Wonderful, Glorious Thrill,' Says 'Mixup' Girl in Own Story

(Editor's note: The following story was written by Mary Louise Garner Pittman, the "mix-up baby" of 17 years ago. After Mary Louise (formerly Louise Madeline) had lived with the Daniel L. Pittmans, of Atlanta, since 1919, under a court order, she decided her real parents are Mr. and Mrs. John C. Garner, of Macon, Ga., instead. This was in accordance with a stipulation in the decision.)

By MARY LOUISE GARNER PITTMAN.

It was really a wonderful, glorious thrill finding my parents after 17 years. It was all so surprising to me that really I didn't understand it at first.

But now that I have found my real family I am the happiest person in the world. I feel like I have experienced one of the greatest thrills in the world, and I am so happy over it all.

Ever since I was nine years old—when I was told about the mixup—I have wondered what the Garners were like and if I were like them. But I was happy with the Pittmans, for they have been so kind to me and have always treated me like I was one of their own.

"Favored the Garners." But often mother (she calls Mrs. Pittman "mother") would remark that I favored the Garners, but she would always add that "you are my honest child," and she always treated me as if I were.

And I have loved Johnnie (Johnnie Pittman, 16-year-old son of the Pittmans) and all of them—and always will. It is heart-breaking thinking that at last—after 17 years—I have come to realize that I really am not one of them.

But then, I have found my real people and when I did, it was the happiest moment of my life.

When I first went into the Garners' home I felt that I was one of them—that I belonged there. It was such an odd experience. I can't describe it. And I felt the doubts I have had all these years vanish, but I was determined to take my time before coming to a decision.

Saw Resemblance. But we were looking over some pictures and I saw the resemblance between Cecil (Mrs. Frank D. Hensley, daughter of the Garners), and myself. Then I was convinced.

I was from Thursday until Monday morning making the decisions that the Garners are my people. That seems like a short time in which to decide something so important, but I am satisfied beyond a doubt that I am right.

But I still love the Pittmans—all of them. And I plan to divide my time between them and the Garners. I guess I will have to call one "Mother Garner," and the other "Mother Pittman."

I wish I were twins. I really do, because I am really up against something.

Expects To Be Happy. But now that I know who I am I expect to be happy the rest of my life. I expect to finish three years of high school and then enter training for a nurse. I want to be in the maternity ward, where I can handle babies—I love them so much.

But I will be careful with them and that there won't be any mix-ups. It would be so great a tragedy if there was. Think of the sorrow it would cause.

And think of the uproar such things cause. My, I never thought people would make such a fuss over me, just an average girl who is so happy that she has found her people after so many years.

Sterchi's August Sale Drawing Crowds of Furniture Buyers Daily

8-Page Magazine Section Appearing in Constitution Today Portrays Vivid Examples of Value Sensations

Of unusual interest to buyers and prospective buyers of home-furnishings will be the eight-page magazine section in today's Constitution devoted to the August Sale of Sterchi Bros. Stores, Inc., 118 Whitehall Street.

Its peak of value-giving with its presentation of carefully selected and sensationally priced merchandise as portrayed in the special section. All departments of the store, furnishing every needed item for the home, take part in the sale demonstration. Suites, Floor Coverings and Draperies are sure to create special interest in the money-saving event.

Unusual services of the Sterchi Store, as announced by the management, are prepayment of freight on purchases to any point in Georgia; evening appointments by arrangement; and interior decorating service without charge. All purchases made for later delivery may be stored without charge, also.—(adv.)

MORRIS FINAL VICTOR IN FIRE INSURANCE SUIT PUT IN FULTON TOWER

U. S. Court of Appeals Orders Companies to Pay Old Claims.

Four years of legal battles over fire insurance payments on the former home of Lucius M. Morris, 2139 East Lake drive, ended yesterday with payments ordered in a decision by the United States court of appeals.

The $50,000 home of the former Decatur street merchant was destroyed by fire that raged for six hours on August 7, 1932, while the family was in Florida on a vacation.

Atlanta and Decatur fire departments refused to respond to alarms, because the house was outside the corporate limits of both municipalities and a fight between the two cities was in progress over the question of paying for fire protection.

Neighbors fought furiously with garden hose in an effort to check the flames but the handsome residence was reduced to a shell.

Charges of arson were filed against Mr. Morris, as the result of a story told by J. R. (Red) Shirley, a confessed criminal and chain gang prisoner, who charged he had been hired to set fire to the place. Shirley's story was discredited after a trial.

Mr. Morris sued the insurance companies and they were ordered to pay the insurance. They filed a motion for a new trial and this was denied. The insurance companies joined in an appeal and in the decision which brought the settlement yesterday, Judge Samuel H. Sibley, of the circuit court of appeals, said:

"The evidence does not justify a belief that insurance was taken out two years before the fire under a plan for a fraudulent fire, and the requested charge based on that theory was unwarranted. The jury probably found there was no arson at all."

5 CASA LOMA WORKERS PUT IN FULTON TOWER

Removal From Jonesboro Jail Relieves Overcrowded Conditions There.

Five of the former employees of the Casa Loma night club were quartered yesterday at Fulton Tower to relieve overcrowded conditions in the Jonesboro jail.

Eighteen men, who were arrested in the raid on the night club last Friday, are still in the Jonesboro jail, but Jailor R. S. Mundy declared yesterday:

"Moving those five men straightened us out down here. The rest of the prisoners are now comfortably quartered."

No move was made yesterday to obtain the freedom of the croupiers, bartenders and waiters, who are being held in jail until the Clayton county grand jury can act August 20.

Solicitor General Claude C. Smith, who instigated the raid, said yesterday that he still was hunting for the real owners and operators of the club.

"When we get them," he said, "they will have something to remember. What we are doing to the little fellows is not a circumstance to what we are going to do to the big guys."

Names of the "big shots" have been uncovered, Smith said.

"When they are arrested," he added, "there will be reverberations throughout the state. They are higher-ups, sure enough."

Yesterday, Judge Davis, of the Stone Mountain circuit, ordered the band instruments seized in the raiding and padlocking of the club returned to Buddy Fischer's orchestra. The instruments have been locked in the building since.

NEW POSTOFFICE TO BE DEDICATED

Decatur Plans Impressive Exercises at New Building Next Wednesday.

Dedication exercises for Decatur's new postoffice will be held at 4 o'clock next Wednesday afternoon, Scott Candler, chairman of the dedication arrangement committee, announced yesterday.

Harilee Branch, assistant postmaster general, and Congressman Robert C. Ramspeck are to be the principal speakers at the exercises, Candler said.

"There is a possibility Mr. Branch will be unable to attend," Candler commented. "In that case, the Postoffice Department will be represented by one of the other assistant postmaster generals."

All Decatur business houses have been asked to close at 4 o'clock Wednesday.

Following the ceremonies, a barbecue will be served at Dogwood, the farm of Sheriff Jake Hall, of DeKalb county, six miles from Decatur. The new building was built of Georgia marble at a cost of $60,000 and is located at the corner of Trinity avenue and Church street.

GAINESVILLE MAN HELD UNDER BOND IN THEFT

His identity still in question, Ernest Giles (Doc) Faulkner, 37, of Gainesville, Ga., was bound over to a federal grand jury at Greenville, S. C., under $10,000 bond yesterday.

Faulkner is charged with being one of a quartet who held up and robbed the Bank of Ward, S. C., of $560 last Wednesday. Harry D. Bell, cashier of the bank, picked Faulkner out of a line of men at Fulton Tower yesterday but other persons will be given an opportunity to view him when he is returned to Greenville today. Faulkner denies participation in the robbery.

WALLACE DELAYS BAN ON CITRUS DYE USE

Use of Coal Tar Color Process Extended to Sept. 1, Secretary Says.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace today extended to September 1, 1937, the effective date of his order banning the use of the coal tar dye process for artificial coloring of citrus fruits.

The secretary said his order was based on the assurance of Florida citrus industry leaders that they would withhold from the market all oranges which fall below the Agriculture Department's standard of maturity.

The department's previous order issued last November fixed September 1 of this year as the effective date. It was based, the order said, upon the ground that the dye process was used to conceal inferiority.

Wallace said "the State of Florida has perfected its organization and made definite progress in enforcement of the recent act of the legislature creating a commission with power to promulgate regulations for the control of citrus packing and marketing operations by the state commissioner of agriculture."

The new order said the department had been given "official assurances" that state control would result in more conspicuous declaration of the words "color added," a more exacting standard of maturity and quality than required by the federal food and drug act, limiting the degree of coloring of early and late varieties to the average color which they normally attain in Florida and restriction of shipments of colored oranges to those which have been inspected and certified by the state agriculture department.

The statement added that observance of the state citrus program "will reduce materially if not entirely occasion for action under the federal statute."

Leaders of the Florida citrus industry conferred with the secretary yesterday and asked that the original order be rescinded, modified, or its effective date postponed. They told Wallace that a series of 1935 Florida laws

Young Kitchings To Take Family On Plane Tour of United States

Chester Kitchings, young Atlanta aviation devotee, will leave this morning with members of his family in his new red-and-black Stinson cabin plane to tour the United States in 30 days.

He began making plans for his "round-the-country" trip Wednesday, shortly after he landed the plane flown by him and Thomas G. Smith, Atlanta transport pilot, from the factory at Wayne, Mich. An airplane enthusiast for some time, the young Atlantan was given the plane by his grandfather, C. A. Wickersham, Atlanta railroad executive, for the high record he made in college.

He is the son of C. A. Kitchings, of 3282 Peachtree road. While a student at Emory University, where he graduated last June, he was a leader in campus activities, being a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, senior honorary society, and president of the Glee Club.

Lacking a few hours of flying for his private license, Kitchings will take Smith, the transport pilot, with him on his tour of the country.

The family will leave at 7 o'clock this morning for Lincoln, Neb. From there they will go to the west, visiting natural parks and cities on the coast. Then the group will fly back across the country, stopping in Washington before touring the New England states.

placed a higher standard on fruit quality and maturity than that set by the agriculture department, and insisted the department's order would be of no benefit in keeping inferior fruit off the market.

MAJOR OCHS DETAILED TO GRIFFIN HIGH ROTC

Major William V. Ochs, United States army, camp commander of the C. M. T. C. unit at Fort McPherson, has been detailed to duty as professor of military science and tactics with the Junior Reserve Officers' Training Corps at Griffin, Ga., High school, it was announced yesterday.

Major Ochs had been on duty with the fifth cavalry at Fort Clarke, Texas, for two years prior to being named camp commander of the C. M. T. C. this summer. Previously he had been detailed with the sixth cavalry at Fort Oglethorpe. He will assume his new post at the close of the C. M. T. C. encampment.

Funeral services for Joseph Francis Gatins, pioneer Atlanta businessman and civic leader, will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at the Immaculate Conception church.

The Rev. Joseph E. Moynan will officiate, and burial will be in Oakland cemetery, under the direction of Brandon-Bond-Condor.

Mr. Gatins died Tuesday night at his home in New York city. Although a resident of New York for the past 30 years, he was widely known in Atlanta, where he began his business career as a young man.

He was a large holder of real estate in this city, including the Georgian Terrace hotel, which he built. He recently visited here in connection with business concerning that property.

397 PERSONS STRICKEN IN PARALYSIS SPREAD

Four New Cases Reported in Alabama; Georgia and Mississippi Quiet.

By the Associated Press.

Five new cases of infantile paralysis today raised to 397 the number of persons stricken with the dread disease in a four-state outbreak.

Alabama reported four new cases, two in Jefferson (Birmingham) county and two in Cullman county, while the fifth case came in an unofficial report from Knoxville. Tennessee's state health department was closed Thursday due to elections.

Mississippi and Georgia, the other two states in the affected area, reported "no developments."

Mississippi, however, gave orders that no schools were to open before August 17 in the affected counties.

"Until health authorities raise present restrictions," said J. S. Vandiver, Mississippi state superintendent of education, "the schools in the counties where infantile paralysis have been discovered will not have my consent to open."

Mississippi has had 25 cases since July 1, with one death.

In Alabama, Adjutant General John C. Coleman ordered all national guardsmen expecting to attend camps later this month to start taking the preventive nasal spray immediately.

He said the treatment would be continued at the camps.

HOWE WILL BE TRIED IN WIFE DEATH TUESDAY

Harry P. Howe, of Dallas, Ga., who was arrested in Chicago July 25 after a four-month police search, will go on trial Tuesday in Paulding county superior court, charged with killing his wife last April.

Detective Lieutenant C. E. McCrary, of Fulton county, flew to Chicago and arrested Howe on a tip from Chicago police. McCrary said Howe neither denied nor confirmed accusations.

Mrs. Howe's body was found in a wooded section near Dallas, with a bullet hole through her body.

THREE KILLED BY BOLT IN N. CAROLINA STORM

MT. AIRY, N. C., Aug. 6.—Lightning killed three men near here today. They were Robert Welch, 30, of Pinehall, and two negroes, Paul Russell, 40, of Sumter, S. C., and Henry Davis, 23, of Pinehall.

The negroes had sought shelter from a heavy rain by crouching under bushes at the side of the highway. Welch had just emerged from under a truck and was walking toward them when the bolt killed all three.

Avenues Of Fashion with Esquire

ADVANTAGE IN COURT CLOTHES

That Improves Your Form

In tennis, as in other active sports, popular interest has grown in proportion to improvement in the technique of the game. Tennis as it was played in the bicycle era has little similarity to the modern game as a tandem has to a contemporary, high-speed, convertible coupe. Apparel built specifically for this sport has become an essential for those who participate in this fast, hard-hitting and skillful pastime.

For the spectators or for wear between matches, a blue flannel blazer has achieved a permanent position as a tennis fashion.

Both the squash shirt and the polo shirt of white knitted lisle are recommended for those who play a fast game. They're absorbent with a minimum of weight.

Bill Tilden made the cable stitch sweater with its deep club-colored "V" neck, the traditional pullover for tennis players. White flannels or sanforized white ducks are highly popular choices for slacks.

For hot weather, the tennis short sponsored by Bunny Austin is very practical and removes all interference from the legs in covering the court. The sun vizor is Helen Wills Moody's contribution to tennis gear.

The navy blue tennis shoe with white sole is affected by Tilden as well as many other top-ranking players, while the deep-soled shoe also shown follows the lines of the shoe worn in that extremely fast game of jai alai. It is, of course, equally practical for tennis.

Dress Suitably for Environment and Occupation, Urges Farm Owner in Advice on How to Succeed

The owner and operator of one of the finest farms in north Georgia remarked, while in Atlanta this week, that he would as soon work in his fields in a tuxedo as try to transact business in the city in overalls.

"It doesn't matter," he said, "what your occupation may be, the wise man will dress suitably for the surroundings in which he finds himself and according to the usage of the people with whom he associates."

"A farmer wears overalls while plowing. I do myself. Anything else for the rough and earthy work of the farm would be absurd. When I come to the city, however, to call perhaps on the banker who lends money when I need it, I wear a good, quiet sort of business suit. For, after all, I am a businessman doing business with another and it is only right that I should be dressed according to the usage of his office."

"If that banker decided to come out and do a little of my farm business with me, such as shucking corn or running a harrow, he'd naturally don overalls for the job."

The farmer remarked that, as a countryman, he had possibly an exceptional opportunity of judging the wearing apparel of the city men with whom he came in contact.

"I've seen some men, supposedly good professional or businessmen," he said, "whose clothes are so messy and cheap and shoddy looking that they distract your attention from the man himself and arouse an unconscious feeling of mistrust in whatever proposition he is making you."

"You sort of feel that if the man can't afford a better appearance, he can't be very successful and, if he is not successful, his goods can't be in much demand and must be, therefore, not very good. So you just naturally don't buy."

"I tell you, it is mighty important for the man who wants to do business with us farmers to put up a prosperous appearance. We're an observant and a eager lot, most of us, and we're mighty apt to judge a man's goods by his appearance."

"Flashy Clothes Taboo."

"But don't make the mistake of dressing yourself too flashily if you want to do business in the country areas. We've gotten skittish about the fellow in loud checks and yellow shoes. We've seen him too often in magazines and the movies as the 'slicker' who tricks the trusting farmer."

"The man we like to do business with is the fellow who dresses well, neatly and prosperously, but conservatively. Just the kind of man, in fact, that impresses city businessmen as reliable and safe."

"If I was trying to sell goods to farmers, I'd invest in three or four good suits of clothes, serviceable and neat shoes, and some plain white, or solid colored shirts."

"I'd keep those suits clean and well pressed and the shoes shined. And then I'd remember that the farmer in the field is attired just as correctly for his work as I was for mine and that, when he comes to call on me in the city, he'll probably be wearing as good a suit as any I own, quite likely bought in the same stores."

And, remembering this, I'd treat the farmer as a friend and an equal and give him a 'box supper' to J. J. Nagel on the occasion of his 90th birthday. He had been a school teacher for 50 years.

PREVIOUS MARRIAGE ADMITTED BY SURGEON

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 6.—(P)—Joseph Anderson, attorney for Dr. Franklyn Thorpe, former husband of Mary Astor, said today the surgeon had admitted a previous marriage.

The woman's name, Anderson said, was Laura Adams.

Dr. Thorpe is defending a suit brought by Miss Astor, screen star, who asks complete custody of their 4-year-old daughter, Marilyn. They were divorced in April, 1935.

The actress asked an annulment of their marriage on the ground that Dr. Thorpe had not received a divorce from Mrs. William Lawton Miles when he married Miss Astor.

Anderson's announcement was the first time the name of Laura Adams appeared in the case.

"Yes, he was married before," the attorney said. "Her name was Laura Adams, and they were divorced in of the New England Trust Company, Boston.

For three hours, beginning when an alarmed farmer reported hearing his motors suddenly go dead, ground crews of the air line searched for the plane. They discovered it, a scattered, ragged mass of wreckage, early today on a farm four miles north of the airport.

Thrown From Plane.

All of the victims, except one, had been thrown from their seats into the plowed field. Apparently all were killed instantly.

The plane took off at 9:56 p. m. on the last leg of its regular New Orleans-Chicago flight. The weather was threatening, with overcast skies and a light fog, but clear conditions were reported north of Springfield, Illinois.

From the time of the take-off until the crash, no word was heard from the crew, although the $50,000 all-metal Lockheed-Electra monoplane was equipped with the latest type two-way radio.

The operator at the field gave Zier a call at 10:02 p. m., but there was no answer. Zier's watch, smashed during the crash, was stopped exactly at that time.

A few minutes after the plane took off, Ben Knoebbe, a farmer living near the field, said he saw its red and green riding lights and heard its motors.

Pilot Flying Low.

"He was very low," Knoebbe said, "and I was surprised to see him start to the left—the west—as he got my place. He was so very low as he passed me that he grazed two tall trees near my house, very lightly, and knocked leaves from them."

As the plane swung on in a wide circle, it was sighted by Ralph L. Sharp, Fairfield, Ohio, vacationing on a farm a mile north of Knoebbe's.

"When I first saw the plane, it was very low, about 50 feet from the ground," Sharp related. "As I watched, it made a steep bank to the left and passed beyond my vision over a hill. Then I heard a terrible crash."

From marks on the harvested ground, it appeared the left wing struck first and the plane turned end over end, disintegrating as it careened 150 yards down the field.

Examination of the plane, reduced to twisted junk, showed the landing gear was retracted when the ship fell, indicating Zier was not attempting to land when the crash came.

39TH AUTO FATALITY REGISTERED HERE

Clint McGraw Succumbs To Injuries Suffered Last Friday.

Another number was added to the accident death toll in Atlanta yesterday, when Clint McGraw, 38, of 810 Windsor street, died at about 10 o'clock yesterday morning in Grady hospital of injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile.

His death marked the thirty-ninth traffic fatality within the city limits since the first of the year, and the second this month.

McGraw was struck in front of 355 Whitehall street last Friday night by a car driven by G. W. Watkins, of a Whitehall street address, according to police reports.

He was at first thought to be suffering only from a fractured left leg, but a later examination revealed a fractured skull.

The body was taken to a mortuary at Dallas, Ga.

MONEY STILL EASY

Reserve Says New Rule Won't Tighten Credit.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(P)—A continuation of what the Federal Reserve Board described as its "easy money policy" in spite of a forthcoming 50 per cent increase in member banks' reserve requirements was announced today in the federal reserve bulletin.

Saying member banks will still have nearly $2,000,000,000 of excess reserves, the Federal Reserve Board said the rise in requirements ordered for August 15 "is not a reversal of the easy money policy pursued by the system since the beginning of the depression."

Money conditions have continued easy since the announcement of the increased reserve requirements last month, the board added.

Excess reserves are the funds of member banks kept on deposit with the federal reserve banks in addition to the amounts required by law. They have built up rapidly in the last half dozen years.

The board said a credit expansion of $18,000,000,000 could be supported by the excess reserves which will remain even after the new regulations go into effect.

THREE MEN ARE KILLED DURING TENN. PRIMARY

TAZEWELL, Tenn., Aug. 6.—(P)—Three men were killed and two injured, one seriously, in two election day fights in Claiborne county today.

The dead are Horace Russell, 60, a farmer; his son, Albert Russell, 20, and James A. Singleton, 52.

Those wounded were William Russell, 65, owner of hotels at LaFollette and Cumberland Gap, and his nephew, Charles Russell, 25, who was shot in the lung.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of sufferers from itching, bleeding or protruding piles have learned that quick and lasting relief can be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor cutting remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts useless. To end Piles an internal medicine should be used to stimulate the circulation and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leunhardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for hundreds of patients with a marvelous record of success and then decided every pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID tablets from their own druggist with a rigid money-back guarantee.

So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Jacobs Drug Stores say "No matter what kind of Piles you have, one bottle of HEM-ROID tablets will show you the safe, clean way to get rid of your Piles misery or money back."

44,540 ON BALLOT LIST, SUTTLES ANNOUNCES

Qualified Voters for City Primary Number 33,002, Collector Reports.

The largest registration list in six years was announced yesterday by Tax Collector T. Earl Suttles, who revealed there are 44,540 voters eligible to cast ballots in the county, state and general elections and 33,002 qualified to vote in the democratic city primary September 2.

Suttles pointed out that 4,196 of these eligible voters live in the city of DeKalb county, leaving a total of 28,806 registered within the city limits of Atlanta.

With the increase in the number of wards nearly doubling registration in each ward, it was revealed the new Fifth ward has the largest number qualified, with a total of 7,019. The Buckhead district in the county, with 2,857 registered, has the greatest total in county districts. There are 15,734 qualified in the county outside the city.

Suttles said this year's registration is the largest since purging of the lists began six years ago. The largest number ever registered in Fulton was approximately 59,000.

Following is a list of registration by wards and districts: First ward, 5,068; Second, 1,019; Third, 2,850; Fourth, 7,019; Fifth, 7,019; Sixth, 6,109; Adamsville district, 171; Alpharetta, 478; Big Creek, 67; Blackhall, 267; Bryant's, 385; Buckhead, 2,857; Campbellton, 42; Center Hill, 1,297; College Park, 1,234; Cook's, 569; Collins, 343; Double Branch, 235; East Point, 2,497; Fairburn, 593; Goodie's, 122; Grogan's, 61; Hapeville, 590; Little River, 159; Newton, 131; Oak Grove, 269; Old First, 135; Old Niles, 100; Peachtree, 524; Poles' 284; Red Oak, 274; Riverfront, 37; Roswell, 578; Sandtown, 78; South Bend, 891; Union, 50 and Union City, 153.

'37 MEAT SHORTAGE FORECAST BY U. S.

Railway Hesitation on Rate Cut 'Brought Serious Situation.'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Coincident with forecasts of a marked decrease in meat supplies for 1937, the government's drought relief committee today discussed what members described as a "serious situation" resulting from delayed freight rate reductions on feed concentrates.

The prospect of decreased supplies was pointed out in the agriculture department's summer survey of meat animals and meat.

Because of feed shortages caused by the drought, it said, meat supplies "probably will be almost as small as in 1935 when supplies were the smallest in the last 15 years." The curtailed supply would "be most marked in pork and the better grades of beef," the survey added.

It predicted a decline in the price of hogs this fall due to heavy marketings.

The drought committee's discussion of freight rates went on behind closed doors.

An AAA official said privately that the railroad's decision to act in the absence of definite assurance they would not be prosecuted on charges of discrimination. Lack of some guarantee that feed handlers would pass the benefit of reduced rates on to the farmers was described as another factor.

EAST POINT PERMITS MOVIES ON SUNDAY

Judge Rules Legion May Operate Shows for Charity Purposes.

Sunday movies may continue to operate in East Point, but only in compliance with ordinances and regulations and when actually operated for charity, Judge E. D. Thomas ruled yesterday in Fulton superior court.

He issued an order allowing the American Legion to operate the picture show on Sunday when the money is given to charity and is accounted for to the city of East Point. No rent on the theater can be paid, nor can employees receive more than regular pay. He consented for the operators to pay for film rights and for such expenses as power. Judge Thomas specified that accountings of receipts and disbursements must be made.

An order restraining the chief of police from stopping the show was continued in effect as long as East Point ordinances are observed.

LONDON WILL CONFER WITH N. Y. SUPPORTERS

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 6.—(AP)—A night and day stop in Buffalo, N. Y., affording an opportunity for personal conferences with republican leaders in President Roosevelt's home state, was planned today for Governor Alf M. Landon's first eastern campaign tour.

As his schedule is drawn, the dental candidate would reach Buffalo Tuesday afternoon August 25 and remain until after his address Wednesday night.

Speeches at West Middlesex, Pa., Saturday and Chautauqua, N. Y., Monday would precede the Buffalo visit.

Republican managers had not outlined in detail where Landon would spend the nights and days between his first two addresses. Should he go directly to Chautauqua, or Chautauqua Lake, after his West Middlesex speech, it would give the governor four days in the Empire state.

ESKIMOS REPORTED FACING STARVATION

JUNEAU, Alaska, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Eskimos along the Arctic rim are facing starvation, said a radio message from Captain C. D. Peterson, veteran Arctic trader, to the governor's office from Herschel island today.

Some of the natives, Peterson said, were in seriously weakened condition and their number are dying. The Barter island situation is particularly serious.

Barter island lies 275 miles east of Barrow, along the Arctic coast. Herschel island is 400 miles to the east.

GOV. HOFFMAN REFUSES TO EXTRADITE PARKER

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Governor Harold G. Hoffman, failing to bring New York's case against the alleged kidnaper of Paul H. Wendel into the open at a public hearing, hinted today he still could refuse to extradite Detective Ellis H. Parker and his son, Ellis Jr.

He reserved decision on the extradition request after a brief public hearing in the assembly chamber of the statehouse, but indicated he was dissatisfied with the evidence produced by the prosecution.

"Certainly nothing has been presented this morning to change my opinion Ellis Parker Sr. should not be extradited," the governor remarked.

ATLANTA THEATER NEWS

'High Tension' To Play At Capitol Next Week

A thrilling film woven about the adventures of two deep sea "trouble shooters," whose adventures ashore are equally exciting, is promised in "High Tension," Fox picture, coming to the Capitol theater Sunday for a week's run.

The film opens with an exciting waterfront fight and interest mounts from one thrilling scene to another. "High Tension" is a combination of excitement, laughter and romance and features Brian Donlevy, Glenda Farrell, Norman Foster, Helen Wood and Robert McWade.

On the stage in connection with this feature picture, the Capitol will offer "The Border Patrolman," with George O'Brien in the starring role. Supporting O'Brien are Polly Ann Young, Roy Mason, Mary Doran and Smiley Burnette.

The present stage show is "Swing Time Revue," a gala stage revue.

'Earthworm Tractors' Presents Joe E. Brown

Joe E. Brown comes to the Paramount theater today in "Earthworm Tractors," a First National production said to be his most hilarious to date.

The picture is based on a series of stories written by William Hazlett Upson and which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. Joe brings to life on the screen the hero of these comedies, that blundering, but well-meaning, egotistical estimation, natural born super-salesman, Alexander Botto, who somehow always wins out in the end.

Joe has two leading women in the picture, one whom he loses to a rival when he leaves town and the other whom he marries after he returns. The first girl is played by Carol Hughes and the second by June Travis. Others in the cast include Guy Kibbee, Olin Howland, Dick Foran, Joseph Crehan, Sara Wilson, William Davidson, Irving Bacon and Stuart Holmes.

The latest issue of "The March of Time" completes the program at the Paramount starting today.

'The Devil Doll' Stars Barrymore at Grand

Ted Browning, who directed "Dracula" series and several of the late Lon Chaney's most hair-raising films, also directed "The Devil Doll," the bizarre thriller with Lionel Barrymore. Maureen O'Sullivan, Frank Lawton and the late Henry B. Walthall, which starts today at Loew's Grand theater. The story is an extraordinary one, of grim and fantastic revenge, and describes a discovery by which humans can be reduced in size to mindless midgets a foot tall.

Adapted from A. Merritt's novel, "Burn, Witch, Burn," the story tells of a prisoner unjustly sent to Devil's Island. Escaping, he learns from a fellow prisoner, a scientist, the secret of reducing humans in size. These tiny people, by hypnosis, can be made to perform any deed and the ex-convict employs such human dolls to carry out his diabolical revenge upon the men responsible for his going to prison.

"The Devil Doll" is also interesting in that through a part of its sequences Barrymore, who plays the role of the escaped convict, is disguised as an old woman—a part which requires a high degree of histrionic skill and gives the actor one of his most remarkable opportunities on the screen.

Barrymore is seen as Lavond, a banker victimized by his associates, and made to appear guilty of looting the bank. For this supposed crime he is sent to Devil's Island, where he meets a mad scientist, Marcel (played by Henry B. Walthall). They escape to the secret island where Marcel's laboratory is built.

'Bohemian Girl' Billed For Week at Rialto

That glorious musical comedy, "The Bohemian Girl," one of the snappiest and most tuneful in the entire literature of comic opera, will be the feature attraction at the Rialto theater for the week beginning today. And, to make the screen attraction even more alluring, the principal masculine roles will be enacted by none other than Stan Laurel and Babe Hardy, the comedians.

The original opera was composed by William Balfe and it has been presented to the delight of generations on the stage of every country in the world. For the screen production Nathaniel Shilkret was musical director, adding modern verve to the beloved musical score and interpolating several new songs, chief of them all being "Heart of a Gypsy," by Shilkret and Robert Shayon. The directors were James W. Horne and Charles Rogers.

In addition to the hilarious Laurel and Hardy team, the cast includes Jacqueline Wells, Mae Busch, Antonio Moreno, James Finlayson, William P. Carleton and others.

"The Bohemian Girl" is notable for its dramatic and romantic story, as well as for the melodramatic of its music. Added to its oldtime glamour is a thoroughly modern handling and adaptation. Manager W. T. Murray has booked "The Bohemian Girl" for a week and has added to his program a group of exceptionally entertaining short subjects.

Fox Stars Baxter, Loy In 'To Mary With Love'

A story that strikes deep at modern love, comes today to the Fox theater, in the Twentieth Century-Fox production of Richard Sherman's sensational successful novel, "To Mary With Love."

Warner Baxter and Myrna Loy, together for the third time cinematically, are co-starring. Their performances are said to surpass the heights they reached in "Broadway Bill" and "Penthouse."

Mr. Hunter, as Myrna's childhood sweetheart, who still loves her, and Claire Trevor, as the good-time girl who almost disrupts the romance, are featured in the cast, which also includes Jean Dixon.

A love-letter romance, "To Mary With Love," opens with the marriage of Warner Baxter and Miss Loy. But man is Ian Hunter, who hides his regret with a grin at seeing Myrna's happiness in Baxter's arms. Making love lightly, yet loving deeply, they move through their honeymoon and then return to New York where Baxter plunges into the stock market, intent on accumulating a fortune. So occupied is he that Myrna takes a trip to Maine alone. Returning home earlier than expected, she finds Baxter hasn't been so lonesome as supposed but, instead, has been entertaining Claire Trevor.

Just as it appears their marriage must break up the market crashes and Myrna finds that her husband needs her more than ever. From their pet house they go to live in a shabby bungalow. Hiding their hurts and holding back their tears, Myrna and Baxter rise gallantly and splendidly from their misfortune and find a new and greater love to reward them.

4 Loving Parents Approve Decision On Future of Hospital 'Mixup Girl'

Brown eyes sparkled with the thrill of conquest yesterday as Mary Louise Garner Pittman heard her two sets of parents chorus their approval of the happy ending she has written to the first major problem of her life.

Mary Louise, as she is to be known now, has won.

She has convinced both her sets of parents that her happiness depends on the plans she has mapped for the future and both have agreed to share her devotion and companionship.

She will move to Macon and enter high school there as the daughter of the John C. Garners and over the week-ends she will pop up to Atlanta to visit the Daniel C. Pittmans, who reared her from infancy.

The heroine of Atlanta's "mystery of the mixed babies" summoned all the maturity of judgment in her 17-year-old mind to evolve this happy solution to the tangle which finds her today leaping from one family tree to another. She is renouncing the parents who have always accepted her as their own child and adopting the parents who have always considered her as the child of whom they were deprived through an error in a hospital's maternity ward.

Both families had claimed her after this reported mix up of babies at Grady hospital in 1919. A court awarded the baby to the Daniel C. Pittmans, with the added provision that the child could select her own parents, according to her own judgment, when she became "of proper age."

After a short visit to the Garner family at their comfortable home in Macon Mary Louise decided that she "looked like a Garner and acted like a Garner," and consequently, she must live here. Then they went to the home of Mrs. J. H. Stewart, the Garner's sister.

Both voiced assurance she made no mistake in deciding the Garners are her people.

"You're a Garner all right," Mrs. Stewart said. "I've known it all along."

Right off, Papa Garner saw the mounting responsibility of adding another grown daughter to the three he already has.

"I've a run in my hose," Mary Louise informed him. "What'll I do?" he assured her.

Then Mrs. Garner suggested they must have an automobile "because them and come up here and spend week-ends with us whenever she wants to."

So yesterday, Mary Louise spent the day getting acquainted with her new kindfolk.

"I'm having a wonderful time," she said, between pop calls at the homes of all the aunts and uncles and cousins in town.

The modestly-dressed girl, beaming through it all, winked and said "Really, I can't wait until tonight."

Pressed for a reason she said she had a "date with Ed." Ed who, she wouldn't disclose, but she did say he was her favored "boy friend."

Posses in Uniform.

Accompanied by reporters and photographers, Mary Louise yesterday visited Georgia Baptist hospital where she borrowed a nurse's uniform to pose for pictures.

Mary Louise has revealed ambitions to become a nurse, but has made no formal application. "Going into training" requires a high school education and at least two years of college work, which the girl lacks.

Mary Louise motored from Macon Wednesday night with Mrs. Garner to see the Pittmans and "straightened things out."

They were joined by Garner, locomotive engineer who laid off his run to come to Atlanta and "see what all the fuss is about and to introduce Mary Louise to the rest of the Garners."

Makes Round of Calls.

Up bright and early Thursday morning, she kissed Mama and Papa Pittman goodbye and was off with the Garners for the round of calls.

First they visited Mrs. Ray Manning, daughter of the Garners, who lives here. Then they went to the home of Mrs. J. H. Stewart, the Garner's sister.

Both voiced assurance she made no mistake in deciding the Garners are her people.

"You're a Garner all right," Mrs. Stewart said. "I've known it all along."

Right off, Papa Garner saw the mounting responsibility of adding another grown daughter to the three he already has.

"I've a run in my hose," Mary Louise informed him. "What'll I do?" he assured her.

Then Mrs. Garner suggested they must have an automobile "because Mary Louise and I are going to do a lot of traveling."

"Agreed," Garner responded without flinching.

Garner said he is certain of the girl's parentage "because she acts and looks like all the rest of my children."

"Blood test? I don't need that as proof. I know she's my child."

Visits "Other" Baby's Grave.

The first time Mary Louise saw the grave of the other baby in the sensational mix-up was when she visited the quiet Roman Baptist cemetery on the outskirts of Palmetto, Ga., late yesterday.

Her arm around Mrs. Garner, she paused for a few brief moments as Garner placed a vase of flowers at the headstone of the last resting place of Mary Elizabeth Garner.

Mary Elizabeth was born May 22, 1919, Garner says—12 hours and 20 minutes after the birth of Mary Louise. The infant died February 5, 1920.

Standing at the grave and speaking with emotion, Mrs. Garner said: "We'd like to make one thing clear. We wanted Mary Elizabeth and would like to have reared her to womanhood. If that would have been possible, I am sure all of this would have been cleared up, for Mrs. Pittman would surely have seen the resemblance between her and her child. We wanted above all, however, to have our rightful daughter."

AUTO DEATH RATE HIGH IN FLORIDA

State Safety Director Reveals Difficulty in Recording Fatalities.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Asher Frank, state safety director, is having trouble keeping up with the number of persons killed in automobile accidents in Florida.

"They're getting killed so fast I can't keep the records up to date," he said.

"These fatal accidents result from disregard for the laws of safety."

Twenty-eight persons were killed in 10 recent accidents, not counting accidents where only one was killed.

Five died in an accident near Perry, four at Homestead, four at Kissimmee, three near Marianna, two at Lake City, two at New Smyrna, two at Palatka, two at Clearwater, two at Tampa, and two more were added at Jacksonville today.

Frank has conducted an extensive safety education campaign in the past two years. Florida newspapers, he said, have devoted more than 1,000 columns of space to safety news.

COLONEL C. EXTON FETED AT BANQUET

DREWRY SAYS DEAL TO AGAIN RULE HOUSE

Virginia Leader Declares G. O. P. Has no Chance of Obtaining Majority.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt was advised today by Representative Patrick Drewry, of Virginia, chairman of the democratic congressional campaign committee, that there was no chance of the democrats losing control of the house of representatives.

The Virginian told reporters after he had seen Mr. Roosevelt that he had seen "the general situation." He described it as "very good from the democratic standpoint." At the present time, he said, there is absolutely no prospect of the democrats losing control of the house and it looks like they will lose very few seats.

The republicans have no chance, he said, of capturing a senate majority, he said. Only a third of the senate seats are involved in the elections every two years.

Senate Prospects Talked.

Senate prospects were discussed with the President, however, by Senator James Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, chairman of the senatorial campaign committee.

The chief executive turned to political considerations after having heard Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia, of New York, chairman of the national conference of mayors, urge that WPA job quotas be increased by about 500,000.

Drewry said he based his report to the President on contacts with congressional races in every corner of the nation. He is keeping closely in touch with them, he said, in his Washington headquarters.

May Lose Few Seats.

He conceded the democrats might lose a few seats but said in contrast they expected to unseat republican congressmen.

In the democratic landslide two years ago, he said many normal republican districts turned into the democratic column and a swing back may be expected. Democrats, he added, placed a few congressmen in districts where the party had not had a man since the War Between the States.

The changes, Drewry said, will mean that the net loss of democratic house seats "will be very small, if any."

"Net Loss Counts."

"And," he added, "it's the net loss that counts, you know."

In the last congress the democrats held a majority of approximately three to one in the house. Asked whether he expected any democratic candidates for house positions to be beaten by the union party, headed by Representative William Lemke, of North Dakota, Drewry replied: "Not a one. I think they will do more harm to the republicans than to us."

REJECTS PATRIOTISM BILL.

PARIS, Aug. 6.—(AP)—The chamber of deputies rejected tonight a bill that would have compelled teachers to instruct their pupils in "the maintenance of the material integrity and the moral independence of the country and the duty of securing national defense by respect for the constitution."

2 OFFICERS DEMOTED BY SEC. MORGENTHAU

Morgenthau Reduces Ranks Of U. S. Investigators for Spying on G-Men.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(UP)—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. today demoted two superior officers of the secret service after confirming an "amazing story" of interdepartmental jealousy that caused them to spy on J. Edgar Hoover's G-men.

At the same time Morgenthau apologized formally to Attorney General Homer S. Cummings for their "irresponsible" inquiry into the activity of justice agents in rounding up members of the John Dillinger gang.

The secret service officers involved are Assistant Chief Joseph Murphy and Chief Agent Grady L. Boatwright, of the St. Paul office. Each was demoted one grade. Murphy will return to command a city office and Boatwright, who was a member of the White House detail during President Coolidge's administration, will get a field post.

Morgenthau did not reveal complete details of the incident, but the demotions gave formal confirmation in part to recent reports that investigators of other departments have been spying on the G-men, as agents of the Justice Department's Federal Bureau of Investigation are known.

The incident supposedly developed out of proposals for consolidation of all government investigating units. Both treasury agents and postal inspectors are understood to resent the publicity the G-men's anti-gang campaign has brought them, and to feel that Hoover's agents often got credit for captures when agents of other departments did most of the investigating work up to the actual point of arrest.

What fostered these jealousies was the multiplicity of government investigating units, and their frequent overlapping of jurisdictions. The secret service, a treasury unit, is charged with guarding the life of the President and preventing counterfeiting. Capture of dope smugglers is the province of the narcotics squad, also a treasury unit. The postoffice has its own detectives to capture criminals who misuse the mails. The G-men have a more general field in combating crime. Sometimes the paths of two or more of these units cross.

Accused to report this is what happened when Alvin Karpis was captured. Postal inspectors complain privately that G-men made the arrest and took all the glory. Similarly treasury agents say off the record that when "Count" Lustig was captured recently at Pittsburgh, their own agents had actually located him and G-men merely took him in custody.

Fear that a merger of all government investigating units would submerge their own work under the direction of Hoover and his G-men is supposed to have prompted the secret service officers into attempting to secure information on the Dillinger case activities. For some time there had been criticism that the G-men were too indiscriminate in the use of guns.

Senator Kenneth McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, voiced this criticism only last session of congress, while questioning Hoover on proposed appropriations for his bureau. ran away, but Barbara Jean's screams were heard by Roy. He ran out of the house, saw the coal house door blocked by the burning excelsior and then ran into the house again.

Rushed to Rescue.

He hurried to a second-floor bedroom, secured a blanket and dashed to his sister's rescue. He pushed away the burning box and smothered the flames on his sister's clothing.

At about the same time, a neighbor, Mrs. Susie Stephens, of 243 Iswald street, rescued the coal house. The burned child was taken to Grady hospital. Modestly discounting his heroic action, Roy said: "I knew I had to work fast and I did. I guess I went up the stairs in one step to get that blanket."

HUMAN RIDDLES That Have Vexed the World

By VINCENT TOWNE.

THE STRANGE CASE OF MARIE LAFARGE.

The most baffling of all French murder mysteries involved the daughter of one of Napoleon's favorite officers, Colonel Cappelle, of the Old Guard. This beautiful girl was also the granddaughter of the famous Duke of Orleans (Philippe Egalite) by his companion and housekeeper, Mme. de Genlis.

Marie Cappelle had a very lonely childhood. After her father's death, when she was very young, her mother remarried, and she was adopted by her aunt. Many men sought her hand, but she failed to return their love, and continued to endure her secluded existence until the age of 23, when influenced by her uncle she consented to a marriage of convenience with Charles Lafarge, a young ironmaster who lived with his mother in a lonely country house, Les Glandiers.

On the day of their return from their honeymoon Marie locked herself in her room and slipped under the door to her entreaties husband a note asking him to free her from her vows, as she loved another and could not endure the contemplation of a life at Les Glandiers. But the couple became reconciled and circumstances seemed to indicate that the story of the former was a fiction invented by Marie. Thereafter she took her place in Lafarge's home, furthered his interests and made herself beloved by his employees and neighbors.

Lafarge was a man of hot temper, and it soon developed that he was not altogether honest in his business transactions. But Marie continued to transform the ugly country house into a cheerful home and to bring sunshine even into the soul of her grim mother-in-law, who had disliked her from the first.

After some time the young bride fell ill. Calling her husband to her bedside, she told him that as evidence of her love and devotion she wished to make a will leaving him the sole enjoyment of her fortune, and Lafarge, touched by her act, made a will of his own, leaving her everything that he possessed. Finally, to raise money for the development of a new enterprise, the ironmaster went to Paris taking with him one Denis, a foreman. This sinister individual seemed to exert an evil influence over Lafarge and to share some knowledge that gave him power over his employer.

Lafarge remained away more than a month during which time he and his wife exchanged affectionate letters. In one of these missives she told her husband that she had sent him a piece of clothing, a miniature of herself and a few little trinkets which she had made, requesting that he eat one at midnight, at which hour she, according to an ancient custom, would eat a similar one herself as pledge of their love.

The box arrived at Lafarge's hotel and was opened not by himself, but by a servant. Afterward, according to his own testimony, the box was presented to him, contained not the several small cakes described by his wife, but one large one. Eating a piece of it, he was taken violently ill. With Denis, he then returned home, having negotiated a loan of $2,000 which transaction was carefully concealed from Marie. His illness continuing Marie was in constant attendance at his bedside. As his sleep was constantly annoyed by rats infesting the old home, she as on previous occasions, ordered arsenic for their extermination, and Denis procured it from the chemist.

Lafarge suffered a painful illness, supposed to be due to attacks of colic, to which he had been subjected since childhood. Finally there arrived upon the scene one Mme. Brun, an intimate of Marie's mother-in-law. The ironmaster now grew worse and Marie begged that a famous specialist be called in for consultation, but his mother insisted upon engaging a young inexperienced physician.

Lafarge died and after Marie had retired to her room to give way to her grief she was amazed to find herself locked in. It then developed that as a result of insinuations made by Mme. Brun she had been suspected of poisoning her husband. Mme. Brun and Marie, the elder claimed to have suspected Marie's guilt for some days before her husband's death, yet they had continued to allow her to prepare his food. Medical experts, who made a postmortem upon Lafarge, reported that they had found no trace of poison in his body, whereupon her mother-in-law apologized for having suspected her, but the authorities did not seem to be satisfied and the widow now only 24 years old, was subjected to a rigid examination, during which her enemies, Mme. Brun and Denis, pointed the finger of suspicion against her. As a result Marie a bride of less than one year, was taken to prison.

While awaiting trial the unhappy woman was subjected to another shock. The public prosecutor received a letter signed "Marquis de Liantaud" and begging that the Lafarge charges be searched for valuable diamonds belonging to his wife. Now it happened that the young Marquis de Liantaud had been Marie's childhood chum and confidante and that she had visited the Lafarges soon after their marriage.

French society was shocked when the diamonds described were found in Marie's dressing case. Considering the wealth of the families concerned, this incident became a mystery that deepened with the fair suspect's repeated statements to her attorney that she could not explain the apparent theft even to him.

The young widow was, however, tried for the theft while still awaiting trial for the murder. At length she confessed to her attorney that the Marquis had selected her as a go-between to sell her diamonds and with the money meet the demands of a former lover, who had threatened to blackmail her. But this story was not believed by the jurors and Mme. Lafarge was convicted of stealing her friend's gems. All France now divided into two camps—the Lafargists and anti-Lafargists. But the diamond case proved to be the young widow's undoing. Her subsequent murder trial lasted 17 days and resulted in her conviction. She was sentenced to the guillotine and the guillotine, protests poured in to the government from all over the country, and finally, on account of public opinion, her sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

While she languished in prison it developed that just at the time when, according to testimony, the Marquis de Liantaud was being blackmailed, a French official bearing the same name as the blackmailer had received from Paris a mysterious box expressed by some one named Liantaud, to whom it was returned unopened. With this new testimony, the prisoner's counsel attempted to reopen the case, but she had languished in prison for 12 years before being finally pardoned. She then retired to a secluded watering place, where five months after regaining her freedom, she died.

Two famous German authorities on criminal jurisprudence wrote an exhaustive treatise setting forth the conclusion that the real murderer of Lafarge had been the evil Denis. The blackmailer in the case died in a madhouse about the time of Marie's death.

DREWRY SAYS DEAL TO AGAIN RULE HOUSE

Virginia Leader Declares G. O. P. Has No Chance of Obtaining Majority.

HIDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt was advised today by Representative Patrick Drewry, of Virginia, chairman of the democratic congressional campaign committee, that there was no chance of the democrats losing control of the house of representatives.

The Virginian told reporters after he had seen Mr. Roosevelt that he had discussed "the general situation." He described it as "very good from the democratic standpoint." At the present time, he said, there is absolutely no prospect of the democrats losing control of the house and it looks like they will lose very few seats.

The republicans have no chance of capturing a senate majority, he said. Only a third of the senate seats are involved in the elections every two years.

Senate Prospects Talked.

Senate prospects were discussed with the President, however, by Senator James Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, chairman of the senatorial campaign committee.

The chief executive turned to political considerations after having heard Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia, of New York, chairman of the national conference of mayors, urge that WPA job quotas be increased by about 500,000.

Drewry said he based his report to the President on contacts with congressional leaders in every corner of the nation. He is keeping closely in touch with them, he said, in his Washington headquarters.

May Loose Few Seats.

He conceded that democrats might lose a few seats but said in contrast they expected to unseat republican congressmen.

In the democratic landslide two years ago, he said many normal republican districts turned into the democratic column and a swing back may be expected. Democrats, he added, placed a few congressmen in districts where the party had not had a man since the War Between the States.

The changes, Drewry said, will mean that the net loss of democratic house seats "will be very small, if any."

"Net Loss Counts."

"And," he added, "it's the net loss that counts, you know."

In the last congress the democrats held a majority of approximately three to one in the house.

Asked whether he expected any democratic candidates for positions to be beaten by the union party, headed by Representative William Lemke, of North Dakota, Drewry replied: "Not a one. I think they will do more harm to the republicans than to us."

REJECTS PATRIOTISM BILL.

PARIS, Aug. 6.—(AP)—The chamber of deputies rejected tonight a bill that would have compelled teachers to instruct their pupils in "the maintenance of the material integrity and the moral independence of the country and the duty of assuring national defense by respect for the constitution."

2 OFFICERS DEMOTED BY SEC. MORGENTHAU

Morgenthau Reduces Ranks Of U. S. Investigators for Spying on G-Men.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(UP)—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. today demoted two superior officers of the secret service after confirming an "amazing story of interdepartmental jealousy that caused them to spy on J. Edgar Hoover's G-men."

At the same time Morgenthau apologized formally to Attorney General Homer S. Cummings for their "irresponsible" inquiry into the activity of justice agents in rounding up members of the John Dillinger gang.

The secret service officers involved are Assistant Chief Joseph Murphy and Chief Agent Grady L. Boatwright, of the St. Paul office. Each was demoted one grade. Murphy will return to command a city office and Boatwright, who was a member of the White House detail during President Coolidge's administration, will get a field post.

Morgenthau did not reveal complete details of the incident, but the demotions gave formal confirmation in part to recent reports that investigators of other departments have been spying on the G-men, as agents of the Justice Department's Federal Bureau of Investigation are known.

The incident supposedly developed out of proposals for consolidation of all government investigating units. Both treasury agents and postal inspectors are understood to resent the publicity the G-men's anti-gang campaign has brought them, and to feel that Hoover's agents often get credit for captures when agents of other departments did most of the investigating work up to the actual point of arrest.

What fostered these jealousies was the multiplicity of government investigating units, and their frequent overlapping of jurisdiction. The secret service, a treasury unit, is charged with guarding the life of the President and preventing counterfeiting.

Capture of dope smugglers is the province of the narcotics squad, also a treasury unit. The postoffice has its own detectives to capture criminals who mislead the mails. The G-men have a more general field in combating crime. Sometimes the paths of two or more of these units cross.

According to report, this is what happened when Alvin Karpis was captured. Postal inspectors complain privately that G-men made the arrest and took all the glory. Similarly treasury agents say of the record that when "Count" Lustig was captured recently at Pittsburgh, their own agents had actually located him and G-men merely took him in custody.

Fear that a merger of all government investigating units would submerge their own work under the direction of Hoover and his G-men is supposed to have prompted the two secret service officers into attempting to secure information on the Dillinger case activities. For some time there had been criticism that the G-men were too indiscriminate in the use of guns.

Senator Kenneth McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, voiced this criticism only last session of congress, while questioning Hoover on proposed appropriations for his bureau. Hoover replied that his men had to shoot to kill when dealing with men like Dillinger, but McKellar insisted: "I doubt very much whether you

Ann Pappenheimer's Scrapbook Reveals Story of California Trip

By Sally Forth.

SEVERAL weeks ago Sally Forth wrote a story concerning Ann Pappenheimer and her plane trip to California, and this aforesaid story forms the beginning of a perfectly made-up scrapbook of her wonderful trip. Although the plane left Candler shortly after midnight, the waiting room at the airport was filled with many of her admirers to bid her "bon voyage." To make the trip all the more thrilling was the fact that Atlanta's own Edward Campbell Davis Jr. was the expert pilot, and guided the huge cabin ship safely over his route, which terminated at Dallas, Texas.

Upon arriving at Glendale, Cal., Ann was intrigued by the cockpit bar at the airport, which, according to an established custom, each passenger must pass through upon arriving. Ann was met by her cousins, Cecil Barbee and Mrs. Clifford Barbee, whom she visited, and was surprised away at once to the first of a series of social affairs planned in her honor. From each of these affairs are souvenirs which Ann has placed in her book, which present an interesting and highly descriptive chronicle of her western trip. There are match folders and menu cards from the leading night clubs, and place cards from dinner-parties, to say nothing of various snapshots of Ann and her hosts at Malibu and

La Guna Beach, where the famous artist colony is located. She flew to Catalina island in a high sea plane and sharing the seat with her was none other than Jean Harlow, who, Ann says, is a perfectly delightful person, full of pep and personality, and whose famous platinum blond hair is much lighter than one would imagine and her peaches and cream complexion is the envy of all the women. The two lovely blondes became quite friendly during the trip, and one of Ann's most treasured possessions is a snapshot of Jean and herself taken just after they arrived on the island, and which forms an important place in the memory book.

The island is famous as a resort. In addition to the beauty spots, including the magnificent shrine built in memory of the chewing gum king, William Wrigley Jr., and a bird farm, which is one of the largest in the world. Visitors at the island take exceptional pleasure in riding in glass-bottomed boats to admire the famous marine gardens, an experience which gave Ann a great thrill.

Dixie Dunbar, Atlanta's gift to stardom, entertained Ann at a spend-the-day party at her home, and they visited the Twentieth Century-Fox studio, where Dixie is filming her new picture and which Ann saw in the making. She visited the other large movie studios and saw and met Shirley Temple and Freddie Bartholomew, who were working on their new pictures.

Ann met George Raft at the Trocadero night club and the suave popular actor invited her to dance a tango with him, which was received with wide acclaim by the guests. She saw the graceful and beautiful little southern belle a great big hand. Second only to California's famed "Tournament of Roses" was the Electrical Motion Picture Exposition given by the Elks, which, according to Ann and her memory book, was one of the highlights of the trip.

One of the hardest parts of the trip was leaving California, but Ann is back home now, and pasted at the back of her book is her plane ticket, which brings to a close not only a wonderful trip, but forms a fitting end to Ann's book which she says she is keeping open until the coming Christmas holidays which she and her mother, Mrs. Jack Pappenheimer, plan to spend in California.

TALES of resort clothes at their prettiest come from one of Sally's scouts in Asheville this week, and some of the smartest women wearing them are Georgians or former Georgians.

Among the later is Mrs. Valdemar Schmidmann, the former Mary Fortson, Georgia belle and beauty, whose marriage before the World War took her to live in far-away Salzburg, Austria. As the guest of her sister, Mrs. Mildred Fortson Gawn, who has a summer home in Baltimore Forest, she was a center of attention at the buffet luncheon Tuesday at the Biltmore Hotel, which is a weekly event assembling most of the feminine part of Asheville's fashionable world. Mrs. Schmidmann wore a summer costume in black and white.

At the same luncheon, Mrs. Edward King, of New York and Asheville, who was Virginia Bowman, of Atlanta, wore a chiffon print in white and navy blue. Mrs. Margaret Norden Dorsey, of Atlanta, who is visiting Mrs. King at her summer home in Baltimore Forest, wore a sport suit of white linen lace. Mrs. Alex King Jr. wore a silk print in one of those amber tints, the color the dress designers are featuring this season.

Mrs. Bessie Jones Blythe's luncheon costume combined king's blue and white. Mrs. Frank Lumpkin, of Columbus, who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Dargan, wore a becoming crepe gown in heavenly blue, self-braided. She is the former Helen Dargan, of Atlanta.

Former Georgians are Mrs. Dorothy Lee Ward, of Washington, D. C., daughter of the late Fayton Taylor Ward, of Barnesville, who has given several showings of her motion pictures taken on her travels in Indo-China, India, Bali and Java, and Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Acklin, now of Wilmington, Del. Mrs. Elizabeth T. Winslow, who is spending the summer in Asheville, entertains a party of young married women at luncheon on Friday.

Miss Edna Spradling Honored at Shower.

Miss Lucile Norris and Mrs. E. B. McKenzie entertained for Miss Edna Spradling at a miscellaneous shower recently at the home of Mrs. T. L. Spradling in West End.

The tea table, covered with a hand-made lace cloth, held in the center a beautiful wedding cake. Contests were enjoyed and prizes were won by Mrs. Bessie Echols, Miss Bertha Pittman, Mrs. Lucius Pickens and Mrs. S. B. Satterfield.

Present were Mesdames F. M. Scheetz, John F. Pittman, Lucius Pickens, E. B. Baggett, J. F. Mayes, F. C. Groover, Elizabeth Daniel, S. B. Satterfield, A. G. King, Bessie Echols, T. L. Spradling, Misses Vivian Spradling, Myrtle Spradling, Isabelle Albertson, Mary Williams, Florine Willis, Opal Willis, Nina Mae Kent, Katherine Reneau, Bertha Pittman, Edna Spradling and the hostesses.

Phi Chi Thetas Give Picnic Tomorrow.

Miss Trotti Pens Descriptive Article on Central America

Editor's Note: Miss Louise Trotti, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Trotti, recently made a trip to Central America with her father and wrote the entertaining article published here below for the DeKalb New Era. Through courtesy of the newspaper, Miss Trotti's article is reproduced in The Constitution. Miss Trotti is a student at Brenau College, and enrolls in the junior class in the autumn.

A country that presents a vivid kaleidoscope of the ancient, new, unique and beautiful is Guatemala in Central America. On July 8, my father, Clifford Henderson, Mrs. H. E. Wright, Hugh Wright and I sailed from New Orleans, and on July 12 we docked at Puerto Barrios, a little sea-coast town in Guatemala, after having stopped briefly in Honduras. We boarded a small train running on a narrow gauge track that was to carry us 197 kilometers (about 150 miles) to the capital, Guatemala City, which has an altitude of over 5,000 feet.

It was an all-day ride, and a most interesting one. At every town, the travelers, as was the custom, stood at attention until the train departed. We passed banana plantations, comfortable homes for employees of the fruit companies, and dense jungles. In direct contrast were the native huts built with bamboo-like poles in the corners and with branches of the palm trees for walls. The roofs were of the same vegetation or of some variety of straw. The floor was the ground itself. An entire family lived in these one-room huts; the livestock were evidently welcomed guests because they went in and out at will. These families could get along very well on 75 cents for several weeks, because the tropical diet consists of corn, beans, tropical fruit, and once in awhile some soup. Scenes like these were prevalent along the entire route.

We arrived at Guatemala City at 6 o'clock and were met at the station by cars from the Palace hotel. The lobby was filled with colorful flowers, and when we were conducted to our rooms, we found a great platter of tropical fruit awaiting us. The hotel compared most favorably with our rest here in the United States. The day was spent sightseeing in the capital city, which is quite modern, having been rebuilt since its destruction in 1917 by earthquakes, and it is one of the cleanest to be found anywhere. We were astonished at the number of police and were told by our guide that they were undisciplined in the past, but that they would have been trained men in addition to the regular military academy has an enrollment of 125, the cadets graduating as lieutenants as our West Pointers.

Guatemala does not have the disorder and revolutions that are found in the other Central American countries. The nation is well organized and they are very pleased with the presidents they have had. One of the most interesting sights was the native market, where everything from dry goods to food is sold. Some of the natives walk 40 and 50 miles with their wares on their backs suspended there from a strap around their heads, and the heavier the load the faster they go—almost at a run. In the afternoon, we visited a coffee plantation. The coffee plants grow about as high as a man, and they are always planted under trees that shade them, so from a distance it appears to be a grove. Coffee itself is a berry and it gets out it must be done by hand, and the native workmen are paid 15 cents per day.

The next morning we left by motor for the interior. As all cars leave the city the number and how many passengers are taken by the police. All along the way was incomparable scenery, high mountains, smoking volcanoes, and lakes of the brightest blue. Our first night's stop was in Antigua, the old capital of the days of the Spanish conquerors. It was here that we saw the ruins of the monastery built in 1543 and destroyed in 1773 by earthquake. Of massive structure, it covers at least two city blocks, and was the crumbled walls can yet be seen hand-carved statues of the saints and seals of the kings of Spain. In its day before its mishap it must have been one of the most beautiful in the part of the world. Also, in Antigua, we saw the natives weaving colorful materials by the old hand looms which had been used for centuries.

It is in the interior that you see real Guatemalan Indians, very short of stature and dressed in their native costumes, each village having their own colors and methods of dress.

The following morning we left for Santo Tomas Chichicastenango, which was the high point of our journey, both in altitude (over 8,000 feet) and in quaint beauty. When we arrived at the Mayan inn the exterior was like all of the other houses in Guatemala, a bare wall facing the street. Once inside the scene would make a seasoned traveler revel in its charm. In the center is the usual patio filled with brilliantly hued flowers, but the rooms opening on the wonderful garden would put the antique lover into perfect happiness. The interiors were furnished with hand-carved furniture dating from the days of the Spanish. None of the antiques may be taken from the country. It was here that the mornings were similar to our fall ones, with delightful breezes and a warm sun, but in the evenings we wore winter clothing and sat before open fires. Sleeping under three blankets in the middle of July was indeed a novelty!

The next day was market day in the village square, and the natives were seen coming from all directions with their goods. Some had walked 30 miles with over 120 pounds on their backs and what was sold was carried back to their homes.

The most impressive sight was the Indians worshipping in the church built over 400 years ago by the Spaniards. The men did most of the praying, and they placed their burning candles on the floor of the church among rose petals or grain. The natives are deeply religious people, and the Catholic priest told us that he had over 33,000 under his jurisdiction. This priest, Father Rosendo, told us that the finest jade collections to be found, and he is justly proud of it.

After two nights at Chichicastenango we went back to Guatemala City, where we were to remain two days before entraining for Puerto Barrios and our boat. It was during this time that we met Mrs. Tostia Townley Roach at her gift shop, where one could buy native-made articles. When Mrs. Roach learned we were from Georgia she was delighted, and more so when she found that we knew Mrs. Walt Holcomb; she and Mrs. Holcomb went to school together.

There are many other features of Guatemala that are of interest here. A different scene meets your eye at every turn. So it was with some sadness that we left the land of eternal spring, because east or west home is best!

Miss Mac Kay Weds Mr. Bruce at Church Rites on August 22

Interest is centered in the marriage of Miss Mary Evelyn Mac Kay, of Houston, Texas, and Mr. Bruce, of Atlanta, which will be solemnized here at North Avenue Presbyterian church, on August 22, at 5 o'clock.

In the absence of Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, pastor, the Rev. Herman L. Turner, pastor of the Covenant Presbyterian church, will perform the ceremony. Preceding the ceremony Miss Emilie Parmelee, organist of the church, will render a program of nuptial music. Miss Helen Castellaw will be maid of honor. Frank M. Robertson will be best man, and ushers will be Luke S. Arnold and J. D. Thomas.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mac Kay Sr., of Houston, Texas. Mrs. Mac Kay having been before her marriage Miss Inga Josephine Olsen, daughter of the late Ole Olsen and Andrine Everson Olsen, of Oslo, Norway. On her paternal side Miss Mac Kay is a descendant of the Mac Kay clan of Scotland, her father being the son of the late Angus Mac Kay and Elizabeth Wares Mac Kay, of Calhounshire, Scotland. Miss Mac Kay is the cousin of Mrs. Alexander Lauder, of Strathaven, Scotland, sister of Sir Harry Lauder, famous Scotch comedian and well-known composer of Scotch songs. The bride-elect's sisters are Mrs. Mac Kay White, of Houston, Mrs. Steven Homoli and Mrs. Constantine Gotsch, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Miss Jeanne Mac Kay, of Houston. Her brothers are Angus and John Mac Kay, of Cleveland, and William Mac Kay, of Houston.

Mr. Bruce, a prominent Atlanta attorney, was born in South Carolina, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Bruce, of Atlanta, and the grandchild of the late Rev. J. C. Boyd, of South Carolina, and the late Dr. J. D. Bruce, of Sanford, Fla. He has been engaged in the practice of his profession for a number of years, during which time he has been active in civic, fraternal and legal circles in Georgia. Mr. Bruce is past exalted ruler of the Atlanta Lodge of Elks, vice president of the Georgia State Elks' Association, and is a member of the several bar associations of the city and state. He is the brother of Mrs. H. B. Bell, of Charleston, S. C., Mrs. Claude Hose, of Birmingham, and Mrs. Edward Franze, of Atlanta; Wallace Bruce, of Post Angeles, and sister, Mr. and Captain Jerome B. Bruce, of New York.

Prior to the marriage, the bride-elect is being fed at a series of showers and teas. Last Saturday Mrs. E. B. Rupard and Miss Sarah Hoshall were hostesses at a miscellaneous shower honoring Miss Mac Kay at the home of Mrs. Rupard. She will be entertained on Saturday at a linen shower given by Miss Lila Jones and Mrs. C. B. Hulsey at the home of Miss Jones. Other parties planned for the bride-elect will be given by Miss John Bowie, Mesdames Lillian Jackson, Edward Franze, Wallace Bruce and Miss Helen Castellaw, the dates of these to be announced later.

Visitors Honored.

Miss Ida Stephens was hostess Wednesday evening at a picnic supper given at the farm home of her brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Reynolds, near Marietta, in compliment to her cousin, Miss Sarah Lee Lippincott, of Philadelphia, and to Miss Esther Hensel, of Wrentham, Wash., to the guest of Miss Elise Hunter. Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds chaperoned the party.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

There are a lot of women who spend their lives catering to their husbands, yet fail to score a hit in the matrimonial game. They work hard and never leave home. They economize and do without (there's a big difference in the two) and they are devoted, self-effacing wives. When all is said and done they can be classified under the head of hired help. A slave wife isn't appreciated by a husband and consequently she doesn't get real consideration from him. To chalk up a score in the matrimonial game a woman has to be companion to her husband.

Sunk in domesticity, she is as poor a companion as one whose time and thought is consumed with card games, club life and campaign speeches. Maybe not quite so good, when she is going about she is at least bringing in juicy gossip to regale her husband with. While he likes his physical comforts he is not averse to diverting conversation.

If a wife doesn't make a social life for the family there isn't any. The average man accepts what his wife provides in the way of friends and visitors much as he accepts the dishes she puts on the dinner table. He grows a bit if food or friends repeat too frequently. He curses the neighbors who stay late when he wants to hit the hay. He lets fall a word of profanity in apostrophe to the lady who can't find her way out of the door after she fastens her fingers on the knob. He goes grudgingly to parties if he has to dress. But on the whole he is pretty decent about the family friends and he is a lot better off for having them around occasionally to break the monotony.

No gainsaying the fact that the conscientious wife ought to adjust

Mrs. Milton Ochs, of Chattanooga, gave a family luncheon on Wednesday at which four generations of the Van Dyke family were present. Mrs. Ochs is the former Miss Fan Van Dyke, and guests were her aunt, Mrs. George Battey, the former Miss Mary Hamilton Van Dyke; Mrs. William Van Dyke Ochs, Miss Alice Ochs and Miss Adrienne Battey.

herself to her husband's financial status but her early resignation to poverty is a big mistake. There are some men who haven't much ambition and they will stay just where they start unless there is a stimulating influence of an aggressive wife in the background. There is never any excuse for her running her husband in debt but there is virtue in her giving him to understand that she has a list ready to go shopping the moment mazzuma is in hand.

Wives who boast the biggest scores in the matrimonial game are women of whom their husbands are proud. When a woman ceases to look in the mirror, her husband ceases to look at her with pleasure or pride. Eternal vigilance is the price of personal daintiness and feminine attractiveness. Too many middle-aged women balk at the price and refuse to pay.

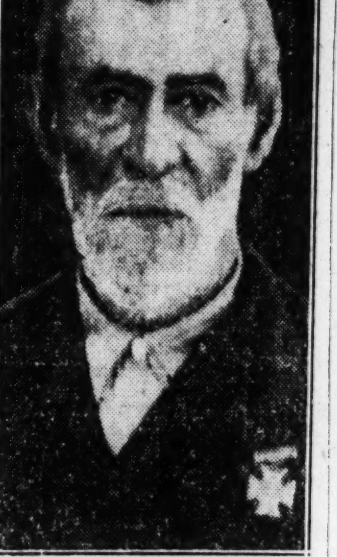

Wives, look up from the stove, the tub, the sewing machine and the budget sheet; get your eyes on the score-board. You may yet chalk up a hit or two if you hurry.

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

—Posed by Kett Gallian.

For People Who Insist That Their Cologne and Talcum Be Alike

By MIGNON.

(The Mignon who writes this column does not sell, endorse or manufacture any cosmetics.)

Mixed fragrances are never especially desirable. Fastidious women don't like using them, and their friends don't like the combinations unless they are exceptional and suited to each other.

There is a fine cologne on the market today, one of the least expensive of the better colognes. It comes in a tall bottle sealed with a tiny ribbon at the cork. There is a talcum to match the fragrances in which you can buy it. I have tried the mimosa and the lilac. It's a most elegant feeling that the use of them leaves after a bath, and they cost what I would say is about the minimum for such luxuries.

I like, when I use an after-bath cologne or toilet water, to feel that I can swish it all over me without being cruel to people who need things more necessary than fragrances. That is why I recommend these inexpensive and very nice products. Your conscience won't hurt you if you use a sixth of a bottle to a bath. And another way to use it, is to toss some into the bath water (unless you take showers.)

If you want to know where you can purchase any article mentioned in this column phone Mignon at the Constitution. Please do not write unless you live outside the city, in which case enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

BIG DISPUTE DEFLATED.

Charles Benning, of San Francisco, of the "city's finest," also ranks as its Solomon. When 7-year-old Leon Rimov sent a hurry call to the police, Benning responded. Leon explained that his sister was trying to put him to bed while that was a task only his mother had a right to perform. Benning suggested that Leon get into bed himself. He did.

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON.
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

I ACQUIRE A SPY.

Dear Ely: I have noted in your column an honest desire to keep abreast of the times, in particular respect to casual contract games throughout the country, on trains, in clubs, and in the family parlor. However laudatory it is for you to attempt to kibitz such games so that you will have human interest material for your public you must have a lot of trouble in preserving your incognito, and of course the moment the players know the illustrious Culbertson is in the room they fall victims of stage fright. You could, of course, disguise yourself in wig and flowing beard, but I don't recommend it in this weather. Besides, I have a much better idea.

I will appoint myself your personal spy, without pay, without even glory! As a commuter I am in position to gather bridge material, of both human and inhuman interest, and send it in to you with my own witty, scintillating comments on bidding and play. All you'll have to do is edit. (What a chance for a pun by you: "I set it, and it was terrible!")

You needn't answer this. Whether you agree or not, I am henceforth your devoted

Dummy's ace won and two rounds of trumps were drawn, after which the ace of diamonds was carefully laid down and dummy's last diamond ruffed by declarer! Now, probably with the thought that he was making a throw-in play, declarer led his remaining small heart. The defenders managed to bear up under this attack, winning the heart and returning a third round which declarer disgustedly ruffed. (Is it possible that he hoped for a club lead up to his king?)

Two club tricks still had to be conceded to the defenders, so the declarer, with a heavy sigh, acknowledged defeat of one trick.

"Incidentally, Ely, this is the caliber of play that is average and you are barking up the wrong tree when you write about Vienna coups and such. Why aim over the heads of the truly 'average players'?"

I hope my spy-without-portfolio is wrong in his estimate of the average player. Personally I believe that most players would have made the hand shown above. Obviously, all the de-

My Day

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Wednesday—This has been a nice day from start to finish. It is rather rare that one reaches the end of a day and looks back without feeling that something went wrong or some people were annoying. Even if we know quite well we are to blame for whatever went wrong, it doesn't make it any less pleasant.

I began by doing a little shopping. Most women like to shop. This time it was not for myself, for since all my friends are now either building or doing over houses or apartments, I find myself lending a hand occasionally. On this particular morning I was picking out curtain poles and material for a living room in an old farmhouse. I think we found exactly what we wanted, but I shall know for sure tomorrow when we go up and try out our selections.

Then Mrs. Scheider and I started on a drive to New Canaan, Conn., where we were to have a picnic with Mr. and Mrs. George Bye. The country is beautiful all the way, little lakes and hills, lovely views up and down the valley. The roads are good and not overcrowded, and because we reached our destination without making any mistakes, we arrived for lunch half an hour early.

We had a delicious lunch out under the trees by a stream, which I would call a brook, but which is named Mill river and runs into Carmel lake. Mr. Bye had asked me to meet some of his neighbors who write really important columns; among them Mr. Heywood Brown and Mr. Westbrook Pegler. My old friend, Mr. Henrik Willem Van Loon turned up also, though he is but a writer of history.

My early arrival made it possible for me to see something of the charming old house in which an old well is actually inclosed as part of the house itself.

There is nothing pleasanter in the world than listening to really thoughtful men and women talk. They can be humorous or serious, reminiscent or prophetic. It is a joy to have no responsibility yourself, and to be entertained without bearing any of the burden of the entertainment.

The time slipped by so quickly that I suddenly found it was 4 o'clock. Even then, I could not tear myself away without walking along the brook to see the cabin in the woods which looks into the tops of the trees. We finally left a little before 5 to get home just in time for dinner.

A. J. HUDSON, 47, DIES IN HAPEVILLE

Prominent Church and Business Leader Succumbs to Short Illness.

A. J. Hudson, prominent member of the Hapeville Baptist church and an Atlanta businessman for 25 years, died yesterday afternoon at his home on Forrest avenue, Hapeville, at the age of 47.

He had been ill but a short time. Mr. Hudson was a native of Villa Rica, and engaged for more than 20 years in the wholesale and retail fish business in this city.

He was a member of the Hapeville Baptist church for 30 years, and served as deacon for 15 years. Recently he was licensed to preach.

He was also active in Masonic affairs, and was a member of the Hapeville Masonic lodge.

Surviving are his wife; a daughter, Mrs. Charles Davis, a son, Perry Hudson; his father, W. E. Hudson Sr., of Winston, Ga.; four brothers, W. E. Hudson Jr., of Villa Rica, and John H. Hudson, E. C. Hudson and Earl R. Hudson, of Atlanta, and a sister, Miss Dana Hudson, also of this city.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by Harold H. Sims.

TORONTO MARRIAGES GAIN.

Cupid was slightly busier in Toronto, Ont., during "the month of brides" this year than he was in 1935, statistics issued by the city clerk reveal. During June 826 marriages were performed, compared with 787 in June, 1935.

Mr. Culbertson will discuss this hand in tomorrow's article.

Write your bridge troubles and problems to Ely Culbertson, care of The Atlanta Constitution, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Dixie Dunbar

"Is It True What They Say About 'Dixie'?"

Will this charming little lady from the south reach the heights of movie stardom? What is the background of her qualifications for the roles. Is she popular in Hollywood? What are her views on a career and marriage? How old is she? Dame Rumor has linked her name with a prominent young man in Hollywood. Who is he?

Just to give you a brief idea of this young lady... she likes spinach, shooting galleries, roller coasters and bowling. She is one of the few movie stars who are popular with the press agents... they like her because she doesn't believe everything they write about her.

Miss Martha Gordy Becomes Bride Of Mr. Robinson in Orlando, Fla.

ORLANDO, Fla., Aug. 6.—Miss Martha Louise Gordy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Gordy, formerly of Atlanta, became the bride of John Eldridge Robinson here yesterday at 5:30 o'clock at the Park Lake Presbyterian church. Dr. C. H. Ferran, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a fashionable assembly of relatives, friends and out-of-town guests. The church was beautifully decorated with clusters of white dahlias and embankments of ferns and palms. On either side of the altar were placed tiers of candelabra with softly burning tapers. The family section was marked with ribbons of white satin and white dahlias and gladioli. Preceding the ceremony Mrs. B. B. Beaman rendered musical selections at the console and Mrs. James Baskin sang "I Love You Truly" and "Because."

Lillian Mae Patterns

Like surprise? There's one in Lillian Mae's latest fashion story, Pattern 4065, for when this versatile model removes its detachable peplum—Be sure to see but an entirely different looking one-piece frock! Charming in its simplicity, the dainty bodice is cleverly shirred and the gracefully flared yoke topped by a flaring Peter Pan collar! Note the different ways you may fashion this easily made style. Without the collar, it is a simple dress; with the collar, it is a dress with a long puffed collar. Select a bright fabric—shantung, matelasse crepe or synthetic would be perfect!

Pattern 4065 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28 and 30. Size 18 takes 3 1/2 yards 39-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included. Belote-Morse Wedding Plans

The marriage of Miss Margaret Belote to Rev. Frank Rogan Morse is scheduled to take place next Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Haygood Memorial Methodist church. Dr. J. McDowell Richards, of Columbia Theological Seminary, will read the marriage service, assisted by the Rev. Frank B. Pim.

Mrs. I. Scott Avery, of West Point, will serve as the bride-elect's matron of honor and Miss Florence Morse, sister of the groom-elect, will be the bridesmaid.

A series of interesting parties has been planned in her honor by friends of the popular bride-elect. This afternoon at 5 o'clock at her home on McLynn avenue, on Saturday evening Mrs. C. V. Harrison and her mother, Mrs. George T. Walker, will entertain at Mrs. Walker's home in compliment to Miss Belote and her fiancé.

On Monday evening, preceding the wedding rehearsal, Mrs. E. R. Belote, mother of the bride-to-be, will give a buffet supper, her guests to include members of the wedding party.

Mrs. Vaux Owens and Mrs. W. M. Banta entertained at a lingerie and hosiery shower yesterday at the home of the former on McLynn avenue. The guests included Misses Belote, Sarah Lawrence, Eugenia Norris, Mesdames C. D. Harrison, M. Gordon Brown, J. E. Felker, C. C. Barton, Herbert Burrows, H. O. Sibley, J. Belote, of Chicago; C. S. Forrester and E. R. Belote.

Plymale-Hoggard.

Cordial interest centers in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Ida Mae Plymale to Joe Hoggard, the ceremony having been performed last evening at the home of the Rev. Robert Lamkin in the Colquitt apartments, with Rev. Lamkin officiating.

The bride wore navy blue crinkled crepe, with hat and accessories to match. Her flowers were roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Edward Hoggard was matron of honor, and the bride's only attendant. She was becomingly gowned in navy blue triple sheer and wore a blue felt hat of a matching shade. Edward Hoggard was his brother's best man.

After a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina, Mr. and Mrs. Hoggard will reside on Gordon street.

FIVE BROTHERS SHIPMATES.

When the flagship Pennsylvania with Admiral A. J. Heiburn on board steamed into the Golden Gate, it developed that the crew also contained five brothers. They are the howdrey brothers of Verdun, Ill. When the depression drove them off the farm, they all enlisted in the navy.

Perry house dresses and play outfits. Fetching frocks for parties. The latest slenderizing designs for stouts. Practical models for children. Advice on fabrics and sewing. Book 15 cents. Address orders to Lillian Mae Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

WE'LL MEET AGAIN

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

INSTALLMENT XIV.

Marchand's desk was spread with fast-food packages. Penny had sketched some of them.

Lucia smiled. Apparently, Gay thought, conscious of her business girl appearance, Lucia had decided to forgo the scene at their last meeting when she had come upon Alan and her in the kitchen.

"Here," said Lucia. "I'm at such a loss. I need some help."

"Miss Baring is selecting a sketch for her wedding gown," said Marchand, his eyes twinkling.

"Yes," said Lucia. "And it's such a problem, my dear. They're so lovely. I can't possibly breathe life into them. I think the little including Besse here has a tall, blond hairdo, who looked so lovely and unbarred to find himself in a woman's gown shop with his mother, looking at a red-haired girl in a gold dress."

"You are Stephen Van Avery's daughter?" the woman said.

She came toward Gay and took her coat off her hands. "You are his daughter, of course. I'd never know it. And where, my dear. You are a perfect combination of your mother and father. You don't know me, do you?"

"I'm afraid not," said Lucia.

"I'm Millicent Randolph and I almost married your handsome father myself. This," she said, smiling at Lucia, "is my daughter, Lucia."

"Oh, I couldn't stand Richard! He was so much better than I!"

Gay thought, the little hammer beginning again in her brain. "Is he really older than I? I feel so wise because of it."

"I don't believe Richard was cruel to you, Patti," she said evenly.

Patti looked up with angry eyes.

"What do you know about marriage and love?"

Gay touched her sister's shoulder comfortingly. It was difficult enough now to make ends meet with only $35 a week between two women who had never been married.

"I don't believe you're glad to see me at all," said Patti.

MAÑNERS OF THE MOMENT

When you bump someone on the street, don't argue."

To be sure it is always tempting when you lay the blame on someone else, especially tempting when you bump into another person on the street or over a bargain counter. You'd like to ask, "What do he think he's doing?" or something genteel like that. But don't let yourself be caught up in the emotion. Remember that you are the one who bumped, just give her a haughty look over your shoulder. It's much better than starting an argument and making a fool of yourself. Remember, things don't open your mouth. Don't say a word. It is sure to be the best way.

If you get so terribly mad, however, and think you can control your anger, self it would be awfully nice of you to say, "I'm sorry, I bumped you." Even if you think she did do the bumping, it would be a nice thing for you to say.

WAYS OF THE WEATHER

V—Whirlwinds of the Sea.
A few weeks ago, news came from Mexico of a "rain of fish." It reported from a town near the coast.

Waterspouts may appear in pairs or in groups of a dozen or more. They differ a great deal in height and in width. Perhaps the highest spout ever measured was seen off the southern coast of Australia 38 years ago. Its height is given as a little more than 5,000 feet. In general, the spouts do not rise more than half a mile, and some are less than 200 feet high.

The tall spouts range in thickness from a few feet to about 400 feet. Short waterspouts may make up for their shortness by their thickness. One of them, only about 100 feet high, had a thickness estimated at 700 feet. This spout was seen off the California coast in 1914.

Waterspouts brought danger to small vessels which sailed the seas a century or two ago, but ocean liners of the present have little to fear from them. The winds which make them are of the same nature as land tornadoes, but do not have so much power.

ing. Old-time sailors were in fear of waterspouts. Seeing one or more of them within range of their sailing vessels, they tried in all sorts of ways to keep off the danger. Sometimes they "cut the air" with a black-handled knife, after reading the Gospel of St. John. In other cases they fired a cannon at the spout. An English captain of early days wrote:

"Men at sea, when they see a spout coming—sometimes fire shot out of their great guns into it, to frighten it away, so that it may break. But I did not ever hear that it proved of any benefit."

Other seamen thought that firing cannon was really helpful, for the cannon was said to break down soon afterward. This may be explained by the fact that waterspouts, even when let alone, are likely to die down in from 10 to 20 minutes. A few last

FARMERS ROUT Y CRACKERS, 10-0, TO EVEN SERIES

Harry Bolden Allows Atlantans Only Three Hits.

CARROLLTON, Ga., Aug. 6.—Harry Bolden limited the Atlanta Y Crackers to three hits here this afternoon as the Farmers defeated the Crackers, 10 to 0.

The victory squared accounts in the three-game series and leaves Friday's game to decide the North Georgia sandlot baseball championship.

Pee Gee Southern, whose hitting and batting won the first game for the Crackers at Ponce de Leon park last week, was knocked out of the box today and Osburn, first baseman, replaced him.

Julian Morgan, whose age was the center of attraction in the recent controversy when the Crackers were ruled ineligible and reinstated, will be the Crackers' hurling selection for Friday's game, with Jake Kaley or Thomas most likely to hurl for the Farmers.

Tennessee Play Opens Today.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 6.—(AP)—The Knoxville Little Smokies and the Nashville club will meet in Sulphur Dell tomorrow afternoon in the first round of the state baseball meet for the American Legion junior title.

Memphis is scheduled to play the winner in the finals Saturday, after drawing a bye in the first round.

The Tennessee champion will engage the Mississippi titlist August 13, 14 and 15 at a site yet to be determined.

El Dorado Wins Arkansas Title.

AUGUSTA, Ark., Aug. 6.—(AP)—El Dorado won the Arkansas American Legion junior baseball championship here today, defeating Fort Smith 10 to 6 in the final game.

El Dorado went into the final with an 11-0 shutout over Bentonville while Fort Smith eliminated North Little Rock 8 to 7.

The winner will meet the Missouri state champion team later this month for the right to enter the southern regional meet.

Tampa, Jacksonville In Florida Finals.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Tampa and Jacksonville juniors became finalists in the state American Legion junior baseball tournament here this afternoon, with victories over Bradenton and Lake Worth, respectively.

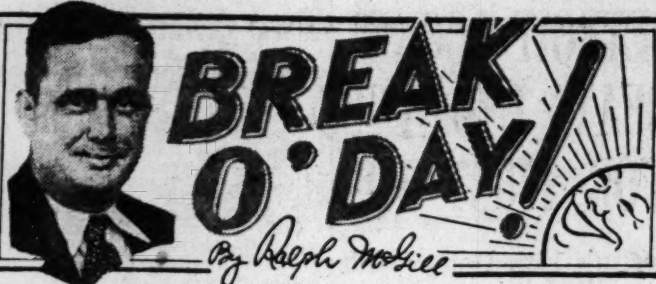

Warren, Dixsteel Will Play Tonight

The Warren and Atlantic Steel baseball teams will clash tonight in the lights tonight on the Warren Athletic field at 8:30 o'clock.

The Warren and Dixsteel teams are considered the two best amateur teams in the city and should put up a battle tonight that will be hard-fought from start to finish. Atlantic Steel won the first half of the Commercial league and is fighting hard to finish on top of the second half while the Warren team won the first half of the City league and are favorites to win the second.

The Warren team, as well as having an impressive record in the City league, has compiled a good record in semi-pro games played over the state, having won 53 games out of 60 games played.

Austin Spain will do the mound duties for the Warren nine while Leonard Mayo will hurl for Dixsteel.

ROYSTON, Ga., Aug. 6.—Here began a great story—here in Royston . . . quiet, thriving little city in the northeast Georgia hills.

It is a typically American story—"Bound to Rise" . . . "From Log Cabin to White House" . . . that type of a story. You walk here on a hot August day. You meet one of the older citizens.

"Did I know Ty Cobb? Let me tell you . . ."

And the story goes on . . . beginning with a kid in short pants who liked to play baseball . . . who was good enough to play with the big boys when still in his short pants.

"Let me tell you about the day he had a fight with one of the big boys. He beat him, too, because he'd been teasing him. You see . . ."

You stop again. The talk goes on. "This is Ty Cobb's home town, you know. I remember him when he was just a little shaver. He was . . ."

The stories grow. All of them a part of the great baseball tradition. Think of baseball. Names crowd to your mind. But the odds are Ty Cobb's comes there first.

And this was his home town. This was where he was born. This was where he played and went to school. And this was where he left to seek his fortune in baseball, a raw, green kid.

This is where they bought him his first pair of long pants and let him go to play baseball.

Ty Cobb now is recuperating from an operation at his home in California. He lives there in retirement on an income accomplished in his 24 years in baseball. And never was he in the really big money which the game gave to others not as great as he. His greatest years were played when he was drawing top salary in baseball—but a salary short of what players later were to get who were not in the same class with Cobb.

And this is where it all began. The imagination takes hold of the story and runs on through 24 years of fiery competition. Standing here on the street—looking up and down—one can picture the young Cobb. He and that first pair of long pants to wear off to Augusta . . . there is a story plot to rival any fiction ever written.

AT THE START.
 "He wasn't much of a ball player at the start," a man who knew him when the long pants were bought, told me today. "He wasn't much. But I always believed in the boy. Man, he had determination and grit. He'd fight at drop of a hat . . ."

"And maybe borrow the hat to drop," said another. "Yeah, and maybe borrow the hat. But he set out to make good and he did. He was, I guess, the best."

The imagination takes up that statement and carries it on.

Ty Cobb came into baseball with fair ability and a driving passion to stand on the peak. He came the hard way. They laughed at him when he broke in with Detroit in 1905. He could not judge fly balls well, he hit only fairly well and he knew nothing of sliding or running bases.

He was bought for $750 and the Augusta owners went around slapping themselves on the back for selling a raw rookie for such a princely sum.

He spent his mornings in the Detroit park chasing fly balls.

He fashioned a sliding pit. And those who knew him then . . . the sports writers in Detroit . . . have told me that he slid and slid in practice until blood dripped from his uniform. It is a true story . . . this one of Cobb.

And he who could not slide or field or run bases . . . he became the artist.

He developed the fadeaway, the hook slide and the fall-away slides. He made himself the terror of opposing catchers. A Philadelphia player, of the days when Cobb was at his peak, told me not many months ago that the Athletics had a first-string catcher who could not be used in the games with Detroit. He became so nervous when Cobb was at bat and on base he was of no use to the team.

I talked with Everett Scott at the National Baseball convention last November at Dayton, Ohio. He was writing an article in a weekly magazine about baseball and he called Ty Cobb the greatest player of all time.

"That's right," said Scott. "To see him on the bases was to experience the greatest thrill in baseball."

YOU THINK OF ALL THAT . . .
 You think of all that, visiting here in Royston, watching the people come and go, and thinking back 32 years and trying to imagine what it must have been like when Cobb left on the big

GILLESPIE LOSES IN CULVER MEET
 CULVER, Ind., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Richard Tindall, St. Louis junior champion, advanced to the quarter-final round of the national junior tennis singles championship at morning's play in the Culver Invitational.

upsetting the third-seeded player, Isadore Bellis, of Philadelphia, 6-4, 6-3.

Bellis, national boy titleholder in 1935, played his usual steady baseline game but Tindall had a much more powerful serve.

Tindall's victory was the first reversal of form in the junior singles since Julius Heldman, Hollywood southpaw, and fifth in the seeded list, moved into the first round of eight by eliminating Campbell Gillespie, of Atlanta, 7-5, 6-2.

Mize's Homer in 11th Gives Cards 3d Straight Over Cubs, 3-2

LONDOS, COLLINS BATTLE TONIGHT

Promoter Frank Bettis states there will be plenty of heat generated tonight in the match between Young Londos and Wild Bill Collins at the Riverside arena.

This is the first meeting of these two wrestlers in over two years, and there is quite a bit to settle pro and con, as to who is the best grappler. Londos promises his friends he will take care of himself if Will Bill attempts to get rough.

The semi-final match brings together two of the best wrestlers in the city, when Don Rainey, the Texas cowboy squares off against a formidable opponent, Billy Kiburn, the Florida star, in a one-hour match.

Sammy Miller, the tough Assyrian, will meet Harry O'Kelly, Irish wrestler, in the opening one-hour match. This match will be crammed full of action.

Dixie Motorcyclists Stage Rodeo Sunday

The Dixie Motorcycle Club will hold its annual rodeo and race meet at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Lake Wood park, with more than a dozen events on the program.

The program is sponsored jointly by the motorcycle club and the Southeastern Fair Association and will be free to the public. No admission will be charged at the gate or in the grandstand.

Included on the program will be racing, bulldozing, side car racing, polo and a number of novelty events. Todd Haygood, who won one of the events at the southern championship last Sunday, will enter both the speed and the side car races.

Bert Baisden and Clarence Pearce, two other well known Atlanta riders, will be entered in at least four of the dozen events during the afternoon.

The Sunday events will decide the club champions and already more than 40 riders have entered the various events.

GAS-HOUSE GANG INCREASES LEAD TO THREE GAMES

Victory Is 18th for Dizzy; Other National Games Rained Out.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—(AP)—The Gas-house Gang from St. Louis, with Dizzy Dean in the lead, nosed out the Cubs 3 to 2 today on the strength of Rookie Johnny Mize's homer in the eleventh to take a three-game lead in the National league pennant chase.

The Cards came from behind with a two-run spurge in the sixth on Ducky Medwick's double with a pair of mates on base, but the Cubs wiped out their lead in the ninth to force the game into extra innings.

Dean hooked up with Bill Lee in a close pitchers' duel for eight innings, and wound up against Charley Root. Although touched for 10 hits, the "great one" was tighter in the pinches than either of his two mound opponents in chalking up his eighteenth victory of the year and giving the Gas-house Gang their third straight win in the current series.

The Cubs counted the first run of the game, pushing a tally across in the opening inning on Phil Hurlbut's double and Frank Demaree's single. Gabby Hartnett batted in the tying run in the ninth with a single after Stan Hack and Herman had hit safely.

The Cards finally got to Lee in the sixth, when Terry Moore beat out a bunt, Frankie Frisch singled, Pepper Martin forced Moore, and Medwick drove a hard smash along the third base line to bring both Frisch and Martin home. First up in the eleventh, Mize lined his homer high into the right-field stands to break up the game.

All other games in the National league were rained out.

BREAK O' DAY

adventure. Horses . . . buggies . . . wagons on the streets . . . no electric lights . . . no fame at all.

Some of them here used to go see him play.

"I saw him play right field and throw out three men at first base one day in one game" . . . "and Ty kept a-humpin' and he beat the ball to third and kept a-keepin'.

The third baseman he got the ball and he threw it in the dirt in front of the catcher and Ty was safe."

There are reminiscences here of Ty Cobb . . . enough to fill many volumes.

BABE RUTH'S TRIBUTE.

It was just the other day that Babe Ruth wrote: "Ty Cobb is my idea of the greatest ball player that ever lived. Most guys are dangerous only when at bat. Cobb was dynamite at the plate, and when he got on base he was plenty worse. Nobody ever could figure out what he was going to do, except to be certain sooner or later he would explode the other birds all over the place."

"In the early years when I pitched at Cobb, and he got on first, I never worried about him stealing second. It wasn't any use worrying about that. When he started for second, if you had any sense at all, you threw to third and hoped you'd nail him there. Once in a while, if you were lucky, you did. Cobb could think up more ways to give a pitcher the jeebie stuff than any other 25 players put together . . ."

Well, he left the game practically all its great records. And he was the kid for whom a pair of long pants were bought to start out on his career . . . here in this town . . . in the spring of 1904.

He was not much of a hitter, a poor fielder and knew nothing of sliding and running the bases.

And he became the superlative genius of the game.

Moore's New Signals To Puzzle Opposition

Sign-Stealing Popular But Cracker Manager Has System That Is Fool-Proof.

By Jack Troy.

Eddie Moore believes in signs.

That is, signs the opposition cannot see.

There has been a lot of signal stealing, as of yore, in the Southern league this season.

Manager Moore didn't say whether some of the rivals had stolen any of his signals, but he believes he now has a system that is fool-proof.

The system isn't to be revealed here, of course, but a bit of explanation might tend to enlighten the subject.

LIPPS, BROWN TOP CARD HERE

Two Georgia boxers who have attained national prominence and recognition for their fists ability will be seen in action Monday night at Ponce de Leon park when Joe Lipps, the Ty Ty heavyweight protege of Jack Dempsey, and Ben Brown, the sensational East Point middleweight, feature Promoter Jimmy Manning's card Monday night.

Lipps will take on Maxie Maxwell, one of the better light heavyweight fighters, in one of the 10-round feature attractions, while Brown will swap blows with either Bob Allison or Harry Schuman, of Chicago, in the other 10-round feature.

The eight-round semi-final will bring together Ray Swanson, of Atlanta, and Ben Logan, of Asheville, North Carolina.

The card is the first of a series of real attractions to be offered Atlanta fans by Manning and every match is sure to furnish onlookers with plenty of thrills.

Both Lipps and Brown are fast coming to the top in their respective divisions and fans here are indeed fortunate to see both on the same card.

Advance ticket sales indicate one of the biggest crowds ever to attend a fight in the city.

DETROIT ROOKIE BEATS INDIANS FOR FIRST WIN

Goslin's 18th Homer Aids Wade's 9-to-0 Victory.

DETROIT, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Rookie Jake Wade all but pitched the Cleveland Indians out of second place in the American league today, holding them to seven hits as the Tigers clubbed out a 9-to-0 victory—their third in the four-game series.

The Tigers fired a 16-hit barrage on Willie Hudlin and George Uhle, featured by Goose Goslin's 18th homer and Marvin Owen's eighth, to give Wade his first victory since the Detroiters recalled him from the International league.

Hudlin, who gave way to Uhle at the start of a five-run Tiger spree in the eighth, was charged with the setback.

Detroit did all its scoring in three big innings. In the third, Hal Trosky's error, a walk, and singles by Al Simmons and Owen sent two runs across. In the seventh, Charley Gehring doubled and paced Goslin home on the latter's four-bagger.

Six hits were cracked out in the big Tiger eighth. Gerald Walker doubled and scored on Irv Burns' single. Goslin singled and Simmons doubled to bring two more runs in, after which Owen hit his homer, scoring Simmons.

The Chicago White Sox topped off a series by defeating the Browns in both games of a double-header by scores of 9 to 6 in the first game and 4 to 1 in the second.

The Browns used three pitchers in their effort to beat the White Sox in the opener, but "Sugar" Cain stayed in long enough to get the credit for beating them. Cain was kayoed in the seventh but Clint Brown was effective in finishing up.

Chief Hogsett went in to pitch the second game for St. Louis and Bill Dietrich, who started yesterday, came back for the Sox and held the Browns to five hits.

Chicago got a break, two passes and three scratch hits, to score three runs in the first inning of the opener, and was never behind the rest of the day. It was the second double-header in two days for the teams.

Two Atlantans Gain In Checker Tourney

MARIETTA, Ga., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Garland Payne, of Macon, defending champion, was still in the running as competitors played the sixth round of the Georgia state checker tournament tonight.

Other players in the sixth-round competition were Carl Knight, of Atlanta; Webster Skelton, of Marietta; Luther Burton, of Marietta; N. P. Malcolm, of Donaldsonville, and John Mitchell, of Cordele, and George A. Clark, of Macon, and W. H. Patterson.

EAST HAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 7.—(AP)—Rain today washed out the matches in the Mainstone Club's invitation tennis tournament for women. The semi-finals will be played tomorrow with Theodosia Smith, of Los Angeles, meeting Gracy Wheeler, of Santa Monica, Cal., and Mrs. John Van Ryn, of Philadelphia, matching strokes with Helen Pederson, of Stamford, Conn.

DON BUFFINGTON IN NET FINALS

ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Two crack Atlanta netmen will battle tomorrow for the northeast Georgia tennis championship. The two, Albert Jones and Don Buffington, marched through the semi-finals of the annual northeast Georgia tournament here today in straight sets.

In the meet's biggest upset, Alan Dale Smith, of Commerce, former Athens city champion, and first seeded entry, fell before the steady stroking of Jones, 6-1, 7-5, 8-6.

Buffington joined his fellow townsman in the finals by trouncing another Atlantan, Harvey Hill, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2. Buffington was seeded third, Hill sixth and Jones fourth.

In the men's doubles division, Ed Winn, of Guyton, local doubles champion, defeated Ed Hodgson and Charles Morris, both of Athens, in a semi-finals match, 6-1, 6-4.

Leonard Hit Hard as Lookouts Beat Crackers in Opener, 7-3

ED LINKE HITS HOMER TO AND 'NOOGA VICTORY

Atlantans Get Eight Hits While Victors Collect Thirteen.

By Jack Troy.

The Chattanooga Lookouts led the hit parade last night as four Cracker pitchers tried in vain to stop the attack. But the Lookouts, who hadn't won a game here all season, were out for blood and the Crackers bit the dust, 7 to 3. A great fan's night crowd of 7,740 (paid) saw the series opener.

Ed Linke, lately of Washington, allowed the Crackers eight hits. Four of them came in one inning, the seventh. It was the only effective hitting the home nine was able to do against Linke, who seemed to be the "missing link" in so far as Chattanooga winning a game here was concerned.

Emil Leonard, Ralph West, Jim Lindsey and Al Williams were featured performers in the hit parade which was led, as said, by Chattanooga.

A total of 13 hits was collected off the combined deliveries of the Cracker quartet. The Lookouts hit timely and scored two runs in the fourth, two in the fifth and three in the seventh.

LEONARD OFF.

Leonard, who was not up to snuff, was in trouble from the start. But fast fielding saved him until the fifth.

A feature of the contest was Pitcher Linke's home run in the fourth to give Chattanooga the lead. There were two men out, and Leonard, who was hit, scored on a single. This mighty wallop, which almost cleared the left field stands, erased the one-run lead Atlanta had secured in the first inning when Maitho led off with a triple and scored on Alex Hooks' infield out.

The Crackers scored no more until the seventh. They secured their final two runs of the game on four hits.

The series will be resumed tomorrow night, with Bobby Durham Manager Moore's choice to stop the last day. The Lookout pitcher is undetermined.

The Nashville Vols were idle yesterday and the defeat cost the Crackers only a half game in the standings. They now lead by four and one-half games. The race is getting a bit hot. Won't someone please stop the wind-dup. It is getting stuffy up here on top.

Atlanta opened the scoring in the first. Maitho drove a triple to left center and scored on Hooks' infield out.

LOOKOUTS SCORE.

The Lookouts took men on the bases in every inning but were unable to break through until the fourth. Bonowitz singled, advanced on a passed ball and a wild throw by Richards. Brown and Crompton were easy outs, but Linke solved the problem by swatting a home run on top of the left-field stand. Maitho followed with a double off the right field signs but expired when Olivares lifted to Chatham.

Chattanooga scored two more in the fifth to take a lead of 4 to 1. Wright led off with a double and advanced on Singleton's infield out. Then Richards led a pitch eat past him and Wright scored. Taylor walked and was safe at second on Bonowitz's fielder's choice. Brown then drove Taylor home with a crashing single to left. Bonowitz overran second and was out in a chase. Crompton grounded out to end the inning.

The Crackers loaded the bases in their half of the fifth with one away, but Galvin, pinch-hitting for Leonard, hit into a double play. And that, as they say, was that.

WEST ENTERS.

Ralph West relieved and was finally removed in the seventh when the Lookouts scored their fifth run and the bases were loaded with only one out. Singleton led off with a double and moved up on Taylor's single. Singleton scored after the catch of Bonowitz's fly in left. Brown beat out an infield hit and West hit Crompton, filling the bases. Jim Lindsey came in and walked Linke, forcing Taylor in. Maitho fled to center and Brown scored after the catch. Olivares forced Linke and the Crackers staged a mild rally.

CUNNINGHAM LOSES—RUNS GREATEST RACE.

BERLIN, Aug. 6.—(By Wireless).—You can tell them back in Kansas that Glenn Cunningham ran his heart out to beat the world's record in the 1,500-meter feature, the greatest race of his career. But the Sunflower speed boy was not fast enough to match Jack Lovelock, the New Zealand express, who beat him by eight feet and the old record by a full second. It was the greatest thriller of the Olympic games.

OLYMPIC TIME IN METRIC MILE BEATEN BY FIVE

boy who never donned a pair of spiked shoes until April of his freshman year at the University of Georgia two years ago. Continuing his unbroken string of hurdle victories which saw him last defeated in 1935, Towns surpassed the recognized world record by winning his semi-final heat in 141 seconds, and then went on to tie the world mark and break the Olympic standard by capturing the final in 142 seconds.

The former Olympic record was 144-made by the late George Saling, Iowa, at Los Angeles in 1932. The listed world mark is 142 made by Don Finlay, Great Britain, who finished third at Los Angeles four years ago and second, and Fritz Pollard Jr., Chicago negro and son of the former All-American halfback from Brown University, finished third despite the fact that he knocked down three hurdles. Finlay barely escaped out Pollard, and both were timed in 144 seconds.

"SPEC" MOVES UP.

Finlay, a royal air force officer, came out of his starting hole like a plane that had just been given the gun. The Englishman cleared the first hurdle well ahead of Towns, but the Georgian boy caught him midway between the second and third hurdles. They raced neck and neck to the seventh barrier, where Towns turned on the heat and forged ahead to finish in 142 feet in front. Pollard came up fast from the rear and threatened to overtake Finlay but lost his chance to make it another one-two finish for Uncle Sam.

The other American hurdler, Roy Staley, Southern California star from Staley, failed to reach the final when he finished fourth in the first semi-final heat in which Towns created his world record.

Brilliant as was Towns' victory it had to take second place for the day to the race of races, the classic 1,500 meters, in which the first two men crossed the line smashed the world record and the first five to finish bettered the Olympic standard.

The "metric mile," in which 12 runners from nine nations faced the start's gun, fairly lifted the huge crowd out of its seats before Lovelock, medical student at Guy's hospital, London, breasted the tape eight feet ahead of Glenn Cunningham. Lawrence, a Canadian, and world's record holder for the mile, Luigi Beccali, Milan, Italian, merchant and Olympic record-holder, finished third; Archie Sam, slender musical student and cornetist from Emporia, Kan., fourth and Phil Edwards, lanky Canadian, fifth.

FIVE BETTER MARK.

All five men bettered the Olympic record of 3:51.2 set by Beccali, Milan, power-houser at Los Angeles. Lovelock's winning time was a full second under the former world mark of 3:48.5 made by Bill Bontrout, former Princeton star, at Milwaukee June 30, 1934. Cunningham's time of 3:48.8 also broke the world record by four-tenths of a second. Beccali's time was 3:49.2, and Roman's 3:50 and Edwards' 3:50.4.

Jerry Cories, Great Britain, who placed second at Los Angeles, was able to get only sixth today as he was timed in 3:51.4, just two-tenths of a second off the fastest previous Olympic 1,500 meters. The other American, Cories, a slender, dark, and world's record holder for the mile, Luigi Beccali, Milan, Italian, merchant and Olympic record-holder, finished third; Archie Sam, slender musical student and cornetist from Emporia, Kan., fourth and Phil Edwards, lanky Canadian, fifth.

One of the biggest surprises of the Olympics came when the German star, Stock, won the javelin throw, an event previously monopolized by the Swedes and Finns. Matti Järven, a bespectacled storage worker in Finland, world's record holder and Olympic champion, had been considered the "surest thing" in the Olympics. He holds the present world record of 249 feet, 8 inches and has a mark of 253 feet, 8 1/2 inches up for acceptance, but made no better than 226 feet, 11 1/2 inches to top for fifth place. He has been complaining of a sore side and he apparently favored his right arm.

400 METERS TODAY.

The 400-meter final tomorrow promises to be a bitter duel between the United States and Great Britain, as these two nations placed all three of their quarterfinals in the semi-finals along with two Canadians, an Italian, German, Frenchman, and Argentine.

The two American negroes, Jimmy Luvale, from U. C. L. A., and Archie Williams, from the University of California, had the fastest times in today's trials. At Los Angeles to win his first heat in 49.1 seconds, Luvale came back to win his quarter-final heat in 47.6 seconds. Williams won his first heat in 47.8 and his quarter-final heat in 48 seconds. Harold Smallwood, University of Southern California collegian, showing no ill effects from his attack of appendicitis during the crossing of the S. S. Manhattan, won his first heat in 49 seconds, and ran second to William Roberts, 25-year-old Englishman, in the quarter-finals. Roberts was all out in winning in 47.7 seconds, while Smallwood finished slowed down in 48.8. The winner of the other quarter-final heat was Herman Blasejak, Germany, in 48.2.

Several players, both pros and amateurs, announced plans to wait until tomorrow before selecting partners for the "best ball" play.

Hohlhass-Burman

Fight Is Postponed

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 6.—(P)—Promoter Jim Downing announced late today that the scheduled 10-round bout between Heinz Hohlhass, German heavy, and Red Brown, Baltimore, had, fighting under the direction of Jack Dempsey, had been postponed from tonight until Friday night.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 6.—(P) The average price of middling cotton at 10 southern spot markets today was 12.53.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, middling, f. o. b. 5 points higher at 13.40.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 6.—(P)

With activity limited to a few scattered purchases by the trade, the cotton market staged a dull performance today.

A better tone prevailed, however, and options held above the previous close for the entire trading period, ending from 2 to 8 points higher.

The cotton market closed at 11.95, March at 11.95 and May at 12 cents even.

Better cables from Liverpool aided domestic markets during the early trading and at one time all options were within a point or so of the 12-cent level.

It was a typical pre-bureau session, professionals on the sidelines.

A little flurry of buying developed late in the day when reports reached the ring that the cotton commission had revised their 12,500,000-bale crop estimate downward.

While the co-operative executives refused to comment on this report, informed sources said that the new estimate was a revision of the original 12,500,000-bale figure.

The government's drought survey, showing that 155 counties were cotton short, is a major crop factor.

The weather map today showed little important change. There were some scattered rains, but actual and predicted in the east. There was no indication, however, of a let-up in the drought of Oklahoma and western Arkansas. Temperatures were a little closer to normal for this time of the year.

Daily receipts of cotton at ports in the extreme south of the belt showed that new crop cotton is not moving very fast yet. Light hedge selling in the market was another indicator that the field was behind last year.

Receipts 7,052; week 30,813; season 30,813; last season 43,882. Exports 7,190; week 25,207; season 25,207; last season 33,708. Total receipts 1,202,904. Stocks shipboard at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston were 22,000; at southern markets were 2,811; last year 6,157.

COTTON PRICES RISE IN N. Y. EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(P)—Cotton showed a further advance today on some trade buying and rather more active covering.

December, after selling up to 12 1/2 at the start, eased off to 11 3/4 but advanced to 12 1/4 in late trading with the general market closing steady at net gains of 6 to 11 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 2 to 4 points in response to the opening demand had been supplied, prices sagged to about yesterday's closing quotations under further scattering liquidation. Later there was a recovery on covering which became more active in late dealings.

Exports today 7,190, making a total of 22,030 for the season. Port receipts 7,052. United States port stocks 1,201,511.
